REPORT OF THE CENTENNIAL YEAR OF THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS
FEBRUARY 28, 1967 to MARCH 11, 1968

The report of the Centennial Year of the University of Illinois consists of two sections - a brief statement concerning each part, event, or activity of the Centennial Year, and extended appendices for related sections giving details on each category.

The Centennial Office has assembled copies of all publications, programs, posters, and other printed materials related to these events.

In addition, Miss Hazel Yates and Mrs. Rose Holmes of the Centennial Office staff, have prepared thirty-five books of clippings in permanent form which have been indexed for ready use. These books provide the most rapid source of reference to all Centennial events and will be placed in a designated depository when the Centennial Office is closed.

This report with the clipping index should provide reasonable access to most Centennial events, or references as to where additional information can be found.

Fred H. Turner, Chairman
Committee on the Centennial

CHAPTER I - GENERAL PLANNING

1. Authority for the Centennial Year
2. Initial Planning for the Centennial
3. The Aims, Themes, and Insignia for the Centennial Year
4. The Centennial Committees

1. AUTHORITY FOR THE CENTENNIAL YEAR

The Centennial Year of the University of Illinois was authorized by the Board of Trustees on recommendation of President David D. Henry at its meeting of March 20, 1963. On that date President Henry made the following recommendation to the Board of Trustees:

The University of Illinois was established by an Act of the General Assembly of Illinois which was approved by Governor Richard J. Oglesby on February 28, 1867. The first meeting of the first Board of Trustees was held in Springfield on March 12, 1867. The University opened on March 2, 1868. The name of the Illinois Industrial University was changed to "The University of Illinois" in 1885.

In order that the University may undertake the formulation of plans for the observance of the Centennial of its founding, I recommend that the Board of Trustees at this time officially designate the period February 28, 1967 to March 2, 1968, as the Centennial Year, and that the President be authorized to make appropriate and suitable plans for its observance.

I further recommend that the class which will enroll in the fall of 1963 be designated as the "Centennial Class of the University of Illinois."

On motion of Mr. Swain, the recommendation was Approved. The Board reconsidered this action, however, and on June 14, 1965, the Chairman of the Committee on the Centennial was notified by Mr. A. J. Janata, Secretary of the Board of Trustees, that the closing date of the Centennial Year had been changed from March 2, 1968 to March 11, 1968. The reason for this change is explained in the following paragraph from the communication received by the Chairman of the Committee from the Secretary of the Board of Trustees.

"The Board of Trustees originally approved the designation of the period from February 28, 1967 to March 2, 1968, as the official calendar for the observance of the University of Illinois Centennial. The Act of the General Assembly of Illinois creating the Illinois Industrial University, now the University of Illinois, was signed by Governor Richard J. Oglesby on February 28, 1867, and the University came into legal being on that date. The first meeting of the first Board of Trustees was held on March 12 of that year. The University opened on March 2, 1868, and the official program inaugurating the Illinois Industrial University was held on March 11 of that year. Accordingly, President Henry proposed, and the Board approved, that the official terminal date be changed to March 11, 1968. Hence, the Centennial Year will run from February 28, 1967 to March 11, 1968."

Thus the following were established:

1. The dates of the Centennial Year were established to begin on February 28, 1967 and to end on March 11, 1968.
2. The Class of 1967 which enrolled in the fall of 1963 was designated as the Centennial Class of the University of Illinois.

2. INITIAL PLANNING FOR THE CENTENNIAL YEAR

Appointment of Centennial Committee

On December 4, 1963 President Henry appointed the Chairman, Vice Chairman, Secretary, and members of the University Committee on the Centennial with the following communication:

Fred H. Turner, Chairman
 Robert B. Downs, Vice Chairman
 E. Eugene Oliver, Secretary

Gerald M. Almy
 Joseph S. Begando
 Herbert O. Farber
 Charles E. Flynn, ex officio
 Charles B. Hagan
 Charles S. Havens
 Louis B. Howard
 Anthony J. Janata
 Edward B. McNeil
 Norman A. Parker
 Roger Pogue
 Melvin Sabshin
 Paul R. Shaffer
 Daniel A. Taylor

"I write to ask you to serve as members of the University committee to make recommendations for appropriate University observance of the centennial anniversary of its founding and to maintain supervision of the implementation of those plans after they have been approved by the President, or his representatives, or by the Trustees where their action is required.

"The Trustees have formally approved the dates of the centennial year and the preparation of plans for an appropriate observance. A copy of their action is attached.

"In carrying out the duties of the committee, it is expected that special committees will be established as plans develop and that administrative staff assistance will have to be provided at some point. While most of the activities connected with the centennial will be carried on in regular departmental channels, it is expected that a budget for extraordinary expenses will have to be prepared.

"I shall appreciate your serving on this important committee and will assume that you will do so unless I hear from you to the contrary.

David D. Henry
 President"

First Meeting of the Centennial Committee

The first meeting of the Committee on the Centennial was held on January 13, 1964 at which time President Henry met with the Committee. The President made a general statement in regard to the Committee's functions, duties and planning. The following quote is from the Minutes of the meeting:

"The President hoped that the Centennial Program might draw inspiration from the greatness of the past to provide projections for the future, stressing the need for the forward look into the new century. From this a strengthened image of the University should be carried to the public, to students, alumni, parents and citizens generally.

"The President stressed his wish that the Program will be in the format of an academic endeavor, rather than merely promotional with the faculty dominant in activities and the prevailing tone academic.

"While much of the program will be carried on through existing channels, with volunteer help, there necessarily may be a budget and small staff to carry out certain functions."

The President stated that with the dates established the following items have been accomplished:

- a. The Centennial history of the University is underway.
- b. A University Archivist has been appointed.
- c. A Committee on the Centennial has been appointed.

He then gave the following instruction to the Committee:

"President Henry desires from the Committee a broad outline of what functions might be carried out, boundaries or limits as to types of activities, a tentative calendar with key points defined, and a budget for operations. Each campus should have its own part, but combined in a unity. The more faculty involvement in all parts, the better."

Assignment of Academic Functions to the Graduate College

On April 21, 1966 a meeting was held in the office of Dr. Daniel Alpert, Dean of the Graduate College, at which time Dean Alpert agreed that his college would appoint a special committee which would screen all proposals for projects of an academic character, develop the relationships between these projects and others, initiate such new programs as desirable, and to organize and to plan the major events for the close of the Centennial Year. Soon after this meeting Dean Alpert appointed the following committee to serve the Graduate College and the Centennial in the above functions. The personnel of this Graduate College Committee follows:

David Pines, Chairman
 Gerald M. Almy
 William E. Kinser
 Nelson J. Leonard
 Melvin Rothbaum
 Glenn W. Salisbury
 Ronald W. Sterkel
 Heinz Von Foerster
 Karl R. Wallace
 A. Richard Williams

3. THE AIMS, THEMES, AND INSIGNIA FOR THE CENTENNIAL YEAR

After thorough study, a statement of the Aims of the University of Illinois Centennial was approved by President Henry on May 22, 1965. This statement reads as follows:

"AIMS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS CENTENNIAL"

"To identify the achievements of the University in its first century.

"To select from its past, in objectives and functions, that which is relevant to the needs of the present.

"To affirm the University's faith in the continuing validity of the great ideas which have characterized its beginnings and growth:

Wide educational opportunity as a condition of individual fulfillment in a free society.

Development of intellectual, cultural and spiritual resources as the chief elements in national strength.

Interaction of instruction, research and service as the means to greatest institutional accomplishment.

"To measure the need for change, more effectively to serve the people of Illinois, and more completely to meet the ideals and standards of the great university in any setting and in any time."

At the same time the theme of the Centennial was approved as the following statement: "From a Distinguished Past - A Promising Future."

The Graduate College Committee proposed four major duties for itself as follows:

1. Organize and plan the major event for the close of the Centennial Year.
2. Screen all proposals of an academic character.
3. Develop possible relationships between these projects.
4. Initiate such other new programs of a scholarly nature as seem appropriate.

It also established criteria for its academic Centennial events as follows:

1. "The event will be basically all-university in character, of interest to students and faculty in all parts of the University. In this context, the committee has thought about the need for liaison with the two Chicago campuses and has a representative on each campus.
2. "The event should create a sense of excitement and intellectual stimulus on the campus, both by bringing the people from the outside, and by enhancing the interaction between our own students and faculty.
3. "The committee feels that academic events should focus on the problems which are of interest in our time and in which the University can make a real contribution.
4. "Wherever possible, the event should occur in an area of the University in which there is real strength. This should enable us to invite a stronger group of visitors to the campus and to make more effective use of them."

The Graduate College Committee also adopted the theme, "The University in Motion - The Challenge and the Responsibility," which was used throughout the Centennial Year.

Two insignia were devised - one for central use, the other for special use by the Graduate College Committee. For General use, Mr. H. L. Sterrett, Art Editor in the University Press, designed a colophon made up of four zeros, four figure 1's, so arranged as to read, "100 any way you look at it." The Graduate College added a special abstract design which it used on its stationery, posters, and other publications. The colophon designed by Mr. Sterrett was not copyrighted, was used on every Centennial publication, as well as on stationery and other manufactured or printed material. It is noteworthy that Mr. Sterrett's design of this colophon was cited by "The Seven Non-Member Exhibition of Chicago's Society of Topographic Arts."

A Centennial Flag was designed by students in the College of Fine and Applied Arts, and students in Hopkins Residence Hall presented the first Centennial Flag to the University at the Twilight Concert on the evening of May 24. This flag was then flown throughout the Centennial Year and duplicates were prepared for the President of the University and the Chancellor of all three campuses.

4. THE CENTENNIAL COMMITTEES

The original Central Committee on the Centennial was appointed on December 4, 1963. The membership on this Committee remained basically intact throughout the entire Centennial period, although there were some changes and additions due to retirements and new personnel. After the decision was made to place the direction of all academic events in the Graduate College, a Graduate College Centennial Committee was appointed and the Central Committee named a smaller Executive Committee to handle emergency matters as they came up.

Centennial Committees were also appointed at the Medical Center in Chicago and at the Chicago Circle.

The student member of the Central Committee appointed a Student Centennial Committee which served throughout the Centennial Year.

Several of the Colleges appointed special Centennial Committees, and those which did not appoint special Committees named faculty chairmen to look after Centennial events in their Colleges. Special Committees were appointed from time to time to serve on special duties. The regular Honors Day, Commencement and Orientation Committees took on the added title of "Centennial" for their events in the Centennial Year.

Much credit is due to the members of the Committees who served so well during the Centennial Year and who actually did much of the work and carried it to success.

See Appendix B for the list of Committees and the members of these Committees.

CHAPTER II - PUBLIC INFORMATION

1. Prior to the Centennial Year
2. During the Centennial Year
3. Radio and Television

1. PRIOR TO THE CENTENNIAL YEAR

Work on the Centennial Year activities began well in advance of the First Major Event. Numerous activities to call attention to the coming celebration were initiated to create and stimulate interest; many of these were continued through the year. The increase in activity by all parties concerned as the year progressed proved the success of the advance activities.

After the establishment of the dates of the five major events and adoption of the Aims and Objectives in June, 1965, one of the basic activities to create interest was calendar publications.

The first call for calendar items went out in June, 1965, to Deans, Directors and Administrative Officers. This was followed by four repeated calls with all items scheduled sent to staff members. The mimeographed pages of material grew from one page on the first call to fifteen pages, with a distribution of 3000 copies February 1, 1967. This was the last call before the beginning of the printed monthly calendars, beginning March 1, 1967. Calendar Briefs were also carried in local papers, The Illini and Alumni News, and all Faculty and Student News Letters.

The Formal Announcement of the Centennial Booklet with the theme, aims, calendar of Major Events, and other information was mailed to some 20,000 persons on a nationwide basis in April, May, and June 1966.

The adoption of the clever Centennial Colophon, designed by Mr. Herbert L. Sterrett of the University Press, proved to be popular and widely used. It was not copyrighted, was available for general use, and information as to its availability disseminated as broadly as possible. As a result, it appeared on practically all University stationery, on referral notes and cards, on all publications, newsletters, bulletins, programs, and on special postage meter cancellation slugs; off campus, it appeared on Illinois Bell Telephone Directories, on numerous community calendars, even in advertisements in the local papers.

A colophon Centennial stamp in sheets of 20 was made available to departments through the University Office Supply Store, was available at all times at the Illini Union Book Stores, and was offered to and used by fifteen campus and community book, drug, and stationery stores. One hundred thousand colophon book match packages were distributed through the Union and other offices, and the Union prepared and sold a Centennial colophon bumper sticker. Campus jewelers prepared and sold a colophon lapel button, tie-tac and bracelet charm, and the Centennial class ring. The Senior Class of 1967 sold a small colophon slogan button which raised funds for its Centennial activities.

Preparation of the Centennial Film, "Hosts of Earnest Men" began far in advance of the opening event, and it was filmed, edited, and ready for wide distribution to television stations for use February 26, 27, 28, 1967, as the Centennial opened.

Too much praise cannot be given to Director Charles E. Flynn, and the Office of Public Information, to Director Miodrag Muntyan, and all offices of the University Press, and to Director Frank E. Schooley, and Radio Station WILL and WILL-TV for their wide distribution of stories, announcements, and spot briefs. Speakers from the University - all over the state, were supplied with Centennial information to be used in connection with any type of function. Model Resolutions in regard to the Centennial were sent to the Mayors of all Illinois communities, and were widely adopted and published over the State.

The Champaign-Urbana Service Club Council erected large billboard signs at all major highway entries to the community noting the Centennial Year. The Mothers Association and the Chicago Medical Center Committee secured the use of similar display signs on the Eisenhower, Dan Ryan, and Kennedy Expressways in Chicago.

Again a spot check near the start of the Centennial Year, made by the Office of Public Information, indicated that the people of the State of Illinois were well informed and aware that the University Centennial was about to begin.

2. DURING THE CENTENNIAL YEAR

Publicity and public information during the Centennial

Year was easily attained; no doubt the number of events was partly responsible - but more important, the quality of the events and the general interest they aroused contributed even more.

Most of the items, functions, and activities started prior to February 28, 1967, carried on through the Centennial Year and were useful throughout. The special design used in the insignia of Graduate College supervised events had wider use - along with the colophon.

Demands for additional monthly calendars increased during the year. Local papers, The Illini, the Alumni News, and the Faculty, Nonacademic, and Student Letters carried continuing stories in regard to events to come, and reviewing events which were completed.

The film, "Hosts of Earnest Men", with 25 copies available, was used by service clubs, secondary schools, alumni groups, and was even shown at some special events in Washington, D. C. Centennial News reels prepared by the Office of Public Information and the Alumni Association were in steady demand.

Miss Diana Moore, reported in the Champaign News-Gazette, prepared and published a year long series of stories on historical events in the First One Hundred Years; and the News-Gazette also sponsored a useful historical photograph series. Director Charles E. Flynn of the Public Information Office, wrote an extended series of historical releases suitable for radio and television use which had wide acceptance.

Two "Illini Centennial Towers" designed by Professor William E. Kinser and Professor Ronald W. Sterkel of the Art Department, were constructed by Graduate Students. These towers consisted of lighted bases with numerous contemporary and historical photographs, with a center tower of "mobile" pictures, turning constantly for the viewer. One of these, first used at the Illinois State Fair in August, 1967, was then placed in the lobby of the Illinois State House, just outside the office of Governor Otto Kerner, until November, 1967. It was then moved to the lobby of the Illini Union, along with one in the lobby of the Auditorium for the remainder of the year. One has been dismantled, packed, and marked for retention for the Sesquicentennial Celebration of 2018.

The Graduate College Committee installed two Centennial Kiosks on the Central Campus for the display of posters and notices concerning Centennial Events. Professors Kinser and Sterkel supervised the preparation of a series of posters, graphic art announcements, and other publicity designs used in the kiosks, on bulletin boards, and in general display.

These posters were extremely popular with students and poster collectors and complete sets are rare and some individual pieces are almost collector items.

Particularly useful during the fall of 1967, was the booklet published by the Graduate College Committee and distributed generally to students - "Books by Fall Semester Campus visitors, George A. Miller Lecturers, and Symposium Participants." All books listed were available at the Illini Union paperback book store.

Three material Centennial memento items should be mentioned. The Mothers Association sponsored a Spode plate with a Centennial "Alma Mater" design which was sold for the benefit of its scholarship program.

Professor James Leach of the College of Engineering, designed and prepared a small cast aluminum medallion with a distribution of about 600. Most of these were used as souvenirs for gifts to campus visitors.

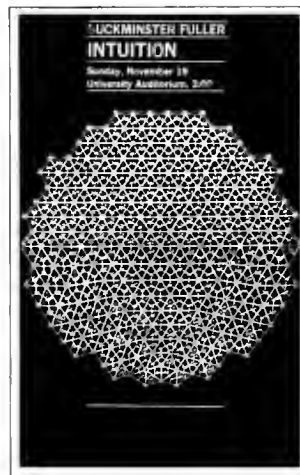

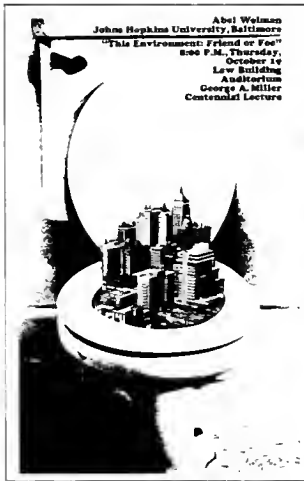

The Graduate College Committee prepared fifty electronic Centennial lighting devices with the "100 theme" which were given to distinguished participants in its activities.

3. RADIO AND TELEVISION

Radio and television had a most important part in the Centennial Year. Both were much involved in the First Major Event (See First Major Event). Station WILL, and local radio stations announced the majority of their programs with a reference to the Centennial. Numerous radio and television programs and interviews with various local personnel and visiting Centennial participants were broadcast. WILL-TV included interviews with practically all major visitors to the campus, and several major events were broadcast live on both radio and television. Tapes on Centennial events were used on 80 stations of the Midwest Agricultural Radio Network.

Director Charles E. Flynn of Public Information, conducted a 40 broadcast series on Station WILL on historical items. The Centennial Chairman had a regular five minute "University Report" on WILL on Monday noons throughout the Centennial Year. President Henry, Director Flynn, and Chairman Turner were interviewed by representatives of "The Voice of America" for overseas broadcast.

Perhaps the most elaborate and extensive radio and television programs of the entire Centennial Year were those planned by the Office of Public Relations and Mr. Jack W. Righermer at the Medical Center. These programs, along with "Your Doctor Speaks", and a series utilizing College of Veterinary Medicine speakers on care and treatment of pets, were all Centennial oriented, and while basically used in Chicago and Illinois, had Midwest and National coverage. (See Appendix C for the list of stations using these programs).

CHAPTER III - THE FIVE MAJOR EVENTS

1. The Opening Ceremonies
2. Honors Days
3. Commencements
4. Welcome to Students
5. The Fifth and Final Event

THE FIVE MAJOR EVENTS IN THE CENTENNIAL YEAR

The general planning for the Centennial Year established five Major Events to serve as the benchmarks for all other activities. These were:

1. The Opening Ceremonies, February 26 to March 2, 1967.
2. The Honors Day Programs, May 3 - June 7, 1967.
3. The Centennial Commencements and Graduation Exercises June 8 - 18, 1967.
4. The Welcome and Receptions for New Students, September 24, 1967.
5. The Fifth and Final Week in the Centennial Year, the Major Celebration, March 6 - 11, 1968.

Following are brief descriptions of each event:

1. THE FIRST MAJOR EVENT IN THE CENTENNIAL YEAR - THE OPENING CEREMONIES

February 28, 1967 (February 26 - March 2)

The First Major Event in the 100th Year of the University of Illinois was the official opening of the Centennial Year, held in the Office of Governor Otto Kerner in Springfield, Illinois, at 2:00 p.m. on Tuesday, February 28, 1967. The Board of Trustees of the University met in Springfield in special session on that date, held a luncheon honoring Governor Kerner and other state officials, then moved to the Executive Chambers of the Governor, where, with intensive coverage by the press, radio, and television, a brief ceremony was held. Governor Kerner read his Executive Proclamation declaring the period, February 28, 1967 to March 11, 1968, as the Centennial Year of the University (See Appendix D); reread the Proclamation of Governor Richard J. Oglesby made exactly 100 years ago, establishing the University, and then commented briefly on the future.

Governor Kerner was introduced by Chairman Howard Clement of the Board of Trustees, and following Governor Kerner, President David D. Henry read from the bill establishing the University in 1867 and some of the resolutions of the First Board of Trustees in their planning sessions, and the brief, but impressive, ceremony concluded with President Henry presenting to Governor Kerner copies of the initial Centennial Publication of the University.

While the basic feature of the beginning of the Centennial Year was centered around the ceremonies in Springfield in Governor Kerner's Offices on February 28, 1967, the activities of the First Major Event actually covered the period, February 26 through March 2, 1967, with a wide variety of events designed to inform the public of the activities, and to mark the beginning of the celebration. In calendar order these were as follows:

- Feb. 26, 1967 - The Newspaper Magazine Supplement, "Impact" especially prepared for the opening of the Centennial was distributed with the Sunday editions of the Chicago Tribune, the Chicago Sun-Times, and sixteen downstate newspapers, (2,000,000). (See Appendix E). (This had been preceded by a special Centennial article in the Sun-Times in its issue of Midwest Magazine, February 19, 1967).
- Feb. 26, 1967 - Special University Centennial Issues of the Champaign News-Gazette, and the Urbana Courier with increased souvenir distribution.
- Feb. 26, 1967 - First public showing of the Centennial Film, "Hosts of Earnest Men", with statewide television and midwest use. Broadcast was in effect throughout the day.

- Feb. 26, 1967 - Spot radio broadcasts of Centennial statements by Governor Kerner and President Henry on a statewide basis.
- Feb. 26, 1967 - WBKB-TV - Channel 7, Chicago. Norman Ross Program, "Off the Cuff".
Panel Discussion -
President David D. Henry
Dr. Joseph S. Begando, Chancellor
Norman A. Parker, Chancellor
Dr. Robert E. Corley
Dr. Daniel Alpert
Dr. Miriam A. Shelden
- Feb. 27, 1967 - Continued radio broadcasts of statements by Governor Kerner and President Henry.

Continued showings of Film, "Hosts of Earnest Men" in Union Buildings on all three campuses.
- Feb. 27, 1967 - Between the halves of the Minnesota-Illinois Basketball Game (television coverage), Richard G. Anderson, Chairman of the Student Centennial Committee, and member of the Central Committee, introduced the members of his Committee - also, there was special music by the Men's Glee Club.
- Feb. 28, 1967 - Special Centennial Editions of the U. of I. Chicagoan and The Daily Illini.
- Feb. 28, 1967 - 8:00 a.m. Flag Raising Ceremony on Quadrangle at Urbana Campus. Participating: Student Committee, R.O.T.C., Band, Institute of Aviation, and School of Music (Chimes).
- Feb. 28, 1967 - Special Choral Programs during noon hours in Unions at Chicago Medical Center and Chicago Circle.
- Feb. 28, 1967 - Opening Ceremonies in Springfield.
- Feb. 28, 1967 - Statement on the University Centennial by Congressman William L. Springer read into the Congressional Record. (See Appendix F).
- Feb. 28, 1967 - Centennial Opening Convocation at Chicago Circle
Speaker - Associate Chancellor Harold W. Bailey,
"A Distinguished Past - A Promising Future".

- Mar. 1, 1967 - First distribution of Official Centennial Monthly Calendars (6500 copies).
- Mar. 1, 1967 - Senate Joint Resolution, Number 27, passed by Illinois House and Senate. (See Appendix G).
- Mar. 1, 1967 - Luncheon and Convocation at Chicago Medical Center. Address by Mayor Richard J. Daley, "Public Health - The Present and Future". Resolution of Mayor Daley. (See Appendix H).

A brief survey by the Office of Public Information following the First Major Event checked the extent to which the people of the State were aware of the beginning of the Centennial Year and indicated a high degree of awareness.

2. THE SECOND MAJOR EVENT IN THE CENTENNIAL YEAR - THE HONORS DAY PROGRAMS

May 3 - June 7, 1967

The Honors Day Programs on the three campuses were designated as the Second Major Event in the Centennial Year. The twelve programs which were scheduled and carried out from May 3 to June 7, 1967, clearly justified the designation.

The Calendar of Honors Day Programs was as follows:

- May 3 - Kappa Tau Alpha Honors Banquet.
(Urbana-Champaign Campus)
- May 3-4 - Honor Society Representatives meeting
(Urbana-Champaign Campus) with their groups.
- May 4 - Engineering Honors Day Awards.
(Urbana-Champaign Campus)
- May 5-6-7 - Mothers Association Programs.
(Urbana-Champaign Campus)
- May 5 - Military Honors Day Ceremonies.
(Urbana-Champaign Campus)

- May 5 - Honors Day Convocation.
(Urbana-Champaign
Campus)
- May 10 - Medical Center Honors Day Convocation.
(Medical Center)
- May 10 - Military Honors Day Ceremonies.
(Chicago Circle)
- May 12 - Chicago Circle Honors Day Convocation.
(Chicago Circle)
- May 17 - College of Pharmacy Honors Program.
(Medical Center)
- May 31 - College of Dentistry Honors Program.
(Medical Center)
- June 7 - College of Nursing Honors Program.
(Medical Center)

Major addresses at these events were given by:

- Kappa Tau Alpha Banquet: Mr. Dan Wakefield, Author and Free Lance Writer.
- Engineering Honors Awards: Dr. Henry T. Heald.
- Urbana-Champaign Convoca- President James A. Perkins, tion: Cornell University
- Medical Center Convoca- Dr. Lester S. King, Senior tion: Editor, Journal of the Amer.
Medical Association.
- Chicago Circle Convoca- The Very Reverend Paul C.
tion: Reinert, President of
St. Louis University

(See Honorary Degrees and Bibliography)

Centennial features were added to each of these programs in the decoration of programs, music, special remarks, and public relations and publicity items.

The most elaborate program was planned at Urbana-Champaign since dates coincided with the Annual Mothers Day Weekend.

The President of the forty-five Honor Societies represented on the Campus were invited to the University for the Program, to arrive on May 3, to meet with their organizations on May 3 and 4, then participate in the President's Luncheon and be members of the President's Party at the Honors Convocation. Twelve of the forty-five societies were founded at Urbana-Champaign, which were given special notice.

The response from these organizations was excellent and twenty-one sent their Presidents or Past Presidents, fifteen sent other national officers, and the other nine named local faculty representatives, most of whom were state or regional officers. All were introduced and recognized during the Convocation Program. (See Appendix I for the list of Honor Society Representatives who participated).

Comments from these Honor Society Representatives after the weekend indicated their satisfaction and pleasure with the event, as one "which was unique and had not been held before".

The Mothers Association made two Honor Presentations as part of the weekend program, awarding Centennial Mothers Association Medallions of Honor to Mrs. David D. Henry, wife of President Henry; and to Mrs. Albert L. Stern, First President of the University Mothers Association.

3. THE THIRD MAJOR EVENT IN THE CENTENNIAL YEAR - THE COMMENCEMENT AND GRADUATION EXERCISES

June 8-18, 1967

The Board of Trustees of the University on March 20, 1963, established the dates of the Centennial Year and at the same time named the Classes of 1967, as the Centennial Classes. This action appropriately established the Commencement and Graduation Exercises in 1967 as a Major Event in the Centennial Year, and they were declared the Third Major Event.

The Calendar of Commencement Exercises was as follows:

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| June 8 -(Chicago Circle)              | Jane Addams Graduate School of Social WorkConvocation. |
| June 9 -(Medical Center)              | Commencement Program (Chicago Medinah Temple).             |
| June 16 -(Urbana-ChampaignCampus) | College of Law Dean's Convocation.                         |

- June 16 - Commissioning Exercises of the R.O.T.C. Pro-(Urbana-Champaign grams.
Campus)
- June 17 - College of Veterinary Medicine Dean's Convoca-(Urbana-Champaign tion.
Campus)
- June 17 - Commencement Exercises. (Assembly Hall).
(Urbana-Champaign
Campus)
- June 18 - Commencement Exercises. (Chicago Stadium).
(Chicago Circle)

The Commencement addresses were given by:

- Chicago Medical Center: President David D. Henry -
"A Historical View of the University of Illinois at the Medical Center".
- Urbana-Champaign Campus: David E. Lilienthal, Chairman and Chief Executive of Development and Resources Corporation and Former Chairman of the United States Atomic Energy Commission.
- Chicago Circle: Associate Justice Byron C. White,
United States Supreme Court.

Centennial features were added to each ceremony. The one at Chicago Circle was worthy of special note since it was the first Graduation Exercises and Commencement Program held on this Campus.

Centennial symbols were used on all programs and the official programs carried a brief Centennial statement, the Centennial Flag was on each platform as a part of the decorations, special music was provided, and wherever possible, Centennial features were added to the standard and usual programs.

The Commencement Committee arranged for special orange and blue tassels with gold colophon medallions to be used on mortar boards of the graduates, and these were retained by the wearer.

The usual Commencement activities - receptions, class reunions, concerts, alumni affairs and awards, special gifts from classes and individuals, all were carried out with Centennial reference, and are covered in other sections of the report. (See sections on Honorary Degrees, bibliography, alumni affairs, performing arts, etc., for other Centennial items related to Commencement and Graduation Exercises).

4. THE FOURTH MAJOR EVENT IN THE CENTENNIAL YEAR - THE CONVOCATION AND RECEPTION FOR STUDENTS

September 24, 1967

Each of the three campuses of the University has its own Orientation Program for new students. These events in September and October, 1967, stressed the entry of a new class at the end of the First and start of the Second Centuries of the University's life in higher education.

The Urbana-Champaign Campus has held a special Convocation to welcome its new students, and with the cooperation of the Alumni Association, planned a Centennial Convocation at the start of the new year as the Fourth Major Event in the Centennial Year.

As a Centennial Year function the University Alumni Association had planned a reunion of its Alumni Achievement Award Recipients, and this was combined with the Convocation as part of the Fourth Major Event. All living Award Winners were invited to return to the campus for a three day function, and the following fifteen found it possible to return:

Arnold O. Beckman, President
Beckman Instruments, Inc.
Class of 1922 - Year of Award 1960

Harry O. Bercher, President
International Harvester Company
Class of 1928 - Year of Award 1966

Harold Boeschstein, President
Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation
Class of 1920 - Year of Award 1961

Edward A. Doisy
Nobel Prize Winner - Chemistry
Class of 1914 - Year of Award 1958

Louis C. Goad, Executive Vice-President
General Motors Corporation
Class of 1923 - Year of Award 1958

William B. Greene, Chairman of the Board
Barber-Greene Company
Class of 1908 - Year of Award 1963

Donald R. Grimes, President
Independent Grocers Alliance
Distributing Company
Class of 1928 - Year of Award 1963

Clifford F. Hood, President
United States Steel Corporation
Class of 1915 - Year of Award 1957

Albert E. Jenner, Jr. - Attorney
Raymond, Mayer, Jenner & Block
Class of 1930 - Year of Award 1966

William G. Karnes, President
Beatrice Foods Company
Class of 1933 - Year of Award 1965

Vicente Y. Orosa
Public Works Engineer
Philippine Government
Class of 1911 - Year of Award 1959

Stewart D. Owen, Managing Editor
The Chicago Tribune
Class of 1920 - Year of Award 1964

James B. Reston, Chief - Washington Bureau
The New York Times
Class of 1932 - Year of Award 1961

Clifford S. Strike, President
F. H. McGraw & Company
Class of 1924 - Year of Award 1962

Oliver J. Troster - Partner
Troster, Singer & Company
Class of 1916 - Year of Award 1967

The general program for their weekend included receptions for them by the Deans of their Colleges on September 22, attendance at the President's and Chancellor's Reception for new faculty members on the same date, preceded by a dinner given by the Alumni Association in their honor, the President's luncheon on September 24, followed by their participation in the Convocation as members of the President's Party.

But they had added activities, for arrangements were made for them to teach or speak in classes, graduate and undergraduate; to meet with students, formally and informally through the day, during lunch and dinner, and in the Union, places of residence, and in classrooms. This feature was handled through a scheduling agency which proved so popular that all were "booked" to the limits of their time, and proved to be the highlight of the weekend.

The Convocation address was given by Chancellor Jack W. Peltason, the introductions of Alumni Achievement Award Recipients were made by Mr. Stewart D. Daniels, Chairman of the Alumni Achievement Awards Committee, and Mr. James B. Reston, Associate Editor of the New York Times, responded for the Recipients.

The success of the entire function clearly justified its selection as the Fourth Major Event in the Centennial Year.

5. THE FIFTH MAJOR AND FINAL WEEK EVENT IN THE CENTENNIAL YEAR

March 6-11, 1968

The Fifth Major and Final Week Event in the Centennial Year continued the theme, "The University in Motion", with the special topic, "Educating for the Twenty-First Century". Quoting from the program for the Final Week: "This final week celebration, from March 6 to 11, will focus on the future role of the University. A four-part symposium on 'Educating for the Twenty-First Century' will explore the possible responses of the University to the challenges that we will be facing in universal education, the impact of science and technology, the concentration of man in cities, and the coexistence of nations throughout the world. The Teach Across will be an experiment in interdisciplinary learning and the Teach In will provide an opportunity for small-group discussion to an extent never before attempted on campus. The culmination of the Centennial celebration will be a major address by President Henry on 'The Land-Grant University in its Second Century' at the Centennial Convocation".

This brief description falls far short of describing the activity of the Final Week. Classes were dismissed on parts of two days so that students might attend. Practically every event was greeted with overflow crowds and live television carried the programs to other halls and assemblies to accommodate them. The novelty of the Teach In and Teach Across programs attracted many, and their success can be measured by the fact that similar programs were continued through the spring semester, after the end of the Centennial Year. The general reactions to the Fifth and Final Event was that it provided a fitting and successful ending to the many activities of the Centennial Year.

The final week events beginning March 6, 1968, opened with the Keynote Address for the week by Dr. Kingman Brewster, President of Yale University, speaking on "The Future of Formal Education". President Brewster was greeted at a reception in his honor at the Krannert Art Museum following his address in the University Auditorium. This keynote session was programmed as Symposium I in the Week's Affairs.

With classes dismissed all day, March 7, 1968, three more symposia were held on that date - Symposium II, "Science and Politics in a Democratic Society", began with an address by Dean Don K. Price, John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University, "Educating for the Scientific Age". Dean Daniel Alpert of the Graduate College moderated a panel discussion of Dean Price's address, with Professor Jack Ruina, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Professor Murray Weidenbaum, Washington University.

"The Fate of the City" was the title for Symposium III. Robert C. Wood, Undersecretary, Department of Housing and Development, spoke on "The Competent City". William L. Garrison, Director of the Center for Urban Studies at Chicago Circle, was moderator of the panel discussion with Professor Serge Chermayeff, Yale University, Professor Oscar Lewis, Professor James Q. Wilson, Harvard University, and Mayor Richard J. Daley, City of Chicago.

Symposium IV considered "Education and World Affairs". Dr. Charles Frankel, Professor of Philosophy, Columbia University, addressed the Symposium on "The Future University: Tool or Maker of Foreign Policy". This symposium was continued on the afternoon of March 8, when with Dr. Frankel, a panel, moderated by Executive Vice President and Provost Lyle H. Lanier, and President Joseph E. Slater, Salk Institute for Biological Studies, and Vice Chancellor George D. Stoddard, Long Island University, discussed the topic.

The morning of March 8, was devoted to open houses and demonstrations with wide participation by students. In the planning included were:

A mock trial at the College of Law.

Tours of laboratories in art, agriculture, and engineering, The Daily Illini, and radio and television stations.

Exhibits and demonstrations in engineering, agriculture, education, architecture, drama, aviation, and veterinary medicine.

Performances in drama and music.

Lectures and seminars in law, architecture, engineering, and journalism.

Many high school and off-campus groups attended these open houses. These were continued through Saturday, March 9.

At the same time the first sessions of the "Teach Across" were held. Described as "a campus-wide experiment in interdisciplinary learning", many of the classes on Friday morning were taught by guest instructors from other disciplines, either other members of the faculty or distinguished visitors on the campus for the final week. The "Teach Across" was continued on Saturday, March 9, all day, and to them were added the "Teach In". Described "to bring together guests of the University and faculty members with groups of ten to fifteen students for discussions around specific issues", the Teach In proved so successful that it was continued in the Union and elsewhere all day Sunday, March 10. Many of the distinguished guests were entertained in faculty and student homes on March 10.

On Saturday and Sunday nights, March 9 and 10, in the Assembly Hall the opera, "The Visitation", was presented. Described in the official program as "a new three-act opera by the contemporary American composer, Gunther Schuller, presented by the University of Illinois Opera Group. ... Starring guest artists Simon Estes, Eugene Holmes, Miss Claudia Lindsey, and Herbert Scott-Gibbons, the opera was staged and produced by Professor Ludwig Zirner and the performances were conducted by Mr. Schuller".

The score called for a large cast of singers, an eighty piece orchestra, electronic sound, dancers, mimes, and a seven piece jazz combo.

The setting in the Assembly Hall was designed and planned by Mrs. Laura Zirner and Mr. Gerald Exline.

The opera had its premiere at Hamburg in 1966, and had been presented only twice in the United States in New York in June, 1967, and in San Francisco, in October 1967.

This third presentation, the first on a University campus, was well attended and received complimentary reviews and wide notice in metropolitan papers and national magazines.

The final program in the Fifth Major Event in the Centennial Year was the "Centennial Convocation" in the Assembly Hall. Chancellor Jack W. Peltason presided. The musical contributions to the program were made by the four University bands, directed by Mark Hindsley; by the University Chamber Orchestra, directed by Professor John Garvey; by the New Music Choral Ensemble, directed by Kenneth Gaburo, and an Electronic Musical Study, created by Professor Lejaren A. Hiller.

The Invocation and Benediction were given by the Reverend Kermit Gregory of the First Methodist Church of Urbana.

The speakers in the program included, the Honorable Timothy W. Swain, who brought greetings as President of the Board of Trustees, Remarks by the Honorable Otto Kerner, Governor of the State of Illinois, Mr. Paul C. Schroeder, a student member of the Centennial Class, and the major convocation address, "The Land-Grant University in its Second Century", by Dr. David D. Henry, President of the University.

Six honorary degrees were conferred near the close of the Convocation.

There was general agreement that the Convocation provided an appropriate conclusion to the events of the Centennial Year, especially a Centennial Year in 1967-1968.

(For the list of all Honorary Degrees in the Centennial Year see Appendix J).

THE CENTENNIAL YEAR

The Centennial observance of the University of Illinois began on February 28, 1967, the one hundredth anniversary of the date on which Governor Richard J. Oglesby signed the legislation creating the Illinois Industrial University. It will close on March 11, 1968, the one hundredth anniversary of the day on which the formal dedication was held, nine days after classes began.

The University of Illinois and other land-grant colleges had their roots in the idealism of Jonathan Baldwin Turner of Illinois College in Jacksonville, Justin S. Morrill of Vermont, and other advocates of "people's colleges" who were dismayed by the fact that the colleges of their day were limited to providing liberal education for the professional class. They successfully fought for a system of colleges that were practical as well as academic, that were not the monopoly of the privileged few but the right of everyone with the desire and ability to learn.

From its modest beginning with fifty students in a single unfurnished building in a muddy field, the University has grown to more than 40,000 students on three campuses. The increasing size of the University reflects our nation's ever-growing demand for education. At the same time, the changing structure and breadth of the University reflect the growth of new academic disciplines and areas of research, and a serious acceleration of complex social problems requiring sophisticated

THE CALENDAR OF CENTENNIAL EVENTS SPONSORED BY THE GRADUATE COLLEGE COMMITTEE IN THE CENTENNIAL, OR JOINTLY WITH UNIVERSITY, COLLEGE, OR DEPARTMENTAL COMMITTEES, OR INDEPENDENTLY BY UNIVERSITY, COLLEGE OR DEPARTMENTAL UNITS

The Academic Events in the Centennial Year were assigned to the Graduate College Committee on the Centennial and were sponsored by this Committee, or jointly with other units. A great many departments, colleges, and administrative units sponsored events which were sufficiently noteworthy and of such quality as to earn the title of Centennial Designation. The Centennial Academic events sponsored by the Graduate College Committee included Colloquia, Lectures, Symposia, Seminars, and Conferences. Without exception these events were well attended by students, faculty and staff, and visitors, many from over the State. Wherever possible the visiting speakers were made available to meet with students formally, informally, at the Union, in classrooms, or in their homes. The student response to this planning was so enthusiastic that a "dating" office was established in the Student Services Building where arrangements could be made for such meetings and social arrangements.

1. CENTENNIAL SYMPOSIA

The Graduate Committee on the Centennial sponsored nine major symposia during the year:

"Man and the Multitude" with the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

"The Patient with Burn, and His Treatment and Nursing Care" with the College of Nursing.

"The Land-Grant College and World Food Needs" with the College of Agriculture.

"Centennial Symposium in Zoology" with the Departments of Zoology and Physiology.

"The Status of Women" with the Department of Home Economics.

"The Art of the Narrative" with the Department of English.

"Matrix for the Arts" with English, Fine and Applied Arts, the School of Music and Architecture.

"Science and the Human Condition" with the Center for Advanced Study.

"Educating for the Twenty-First Century", the fifth and final major event in the Centennial Year.

(See complete list of Centennial Symposia at end of this Chapter and Chapter III for Fifth Major Event).

Other Symposia worthy of Centennial mention:

"The Corporation and Social Responsibility" at Chicago Circle.

"The Developmental Process in Aging" at the Medical Center.

"The Quaternary of Illinois" at Urbana-Champaign.

"Renal Insufficiency" at the Medical Center.

(See Appendix K for additional Symposia).

2. CENTENNIAL LECTURES

Centennial designated Lectures with Graduate College joint sponsorship included all named lectureships on all three campuses: George A. Miller, Windsor, Lorado Taft, David Kinley, Edmund J. James, W. A. Noyes, Jane Addams, Gehrman, and D. J. Davis Lectureships were particularly emphasized. Departments and Colleges added numerous special lectures given "Centennial" designation. The complete list of Centennial Lectures appears at the end of this Chapter.

Nearly two hundred and fifty other lectures were presented by various units on all three campuses. These included distinguished visitors from all over the world, many of whom deserved Centennial designation, had scheduling permitted their inclusion as marked "Centennial Lecture". The very impressive list of these "other" Lectures is found in Appendix L.

3. CENTENNIAL COLLOQUIA

The major official Colloquium sponsored by the Graduate College Committee at the Urbana Campus was the series "On Science and Human Affairs" with the Division of General Studies, History, Political Science, Aerospace Studies, Chemistry and Chemical Engineering, and Government and Public Affairs. Other Centennial Colloquia were held on the Medical Center Campus. Details appear at the end of this Chapter.

Nearly two hundred other Colloquia were held on the three campuses, again utilizing distinguished persons from all over the world as well as many of the University's own staff. So many of these deserve Centennial designation that the complete list is found in Appendix M.

4. CENTENNIAL SEMINARS

The Centennial Seminar Series began with a "Centennial Seminar in International Accounting" which brought participants to the College of Commerce and Business Administration from all over the world. Others were held on the Campus, at Allerton and Hott Memorial Center. The list of Centennial Seminars appears at the end of this Chapter.

Other Seminars during the Centennial Year were so numerous and of such quality that they must be mentioned. See Appendix N for the more than 350 Seminars held.

5. CENTENNIAL CONFERENCES

Fifteen Centennial Conferences were held during the year but an additional fifty took place, most of them worthy of Centennial designation. Especially noteworthy were Conferences on "Safety in Transportation, Art Education, Human Relations and Equal Opportunities, Education for Librarianship, Changes for Automobile Claims, and Child Care Facility Regulations. The list of Centennial Conferences appears at the end of this Chapter and in Appendix O.

6. OTHER MEETINGS, ASSEMBLIES, AND SPECIAL DAYS

In addition to the Colloquia, Lectures, Symposia, Seminars, and Conferences, there were numerous other University sponsored events, basically academic in character, which deserve mention. Those in charge of these events used Centennial reference and insignia in their announcements and programs, referred to them as "Centennial Events" or "Events in the Centennial Year" and maintained their identity with Centennial activities.

These included Meetings, Institutes and Workshops, National, Statewide, and Local groups, and a calendar of such events is in Appendix P.

7. ASSEMBLIES, DISCUSSIONS, FIELD TRIPS, FORUMS, ETC.

Another group of academically oriented meetings were Assemblies, Discussions, Field Trips, Forums, Open Houses, Panel Programs, Short Courses, and Training Programs. A calendar of these events is in Appendix Q.

8. SPECIAL DAYS

Still another type of meetings were the "Special Days", College and Departmentally sponsored, which usually brought to the campus, or elsewhere, many alumni and interested citizens. The calendar of these Special Days is found in Appendix R.

CHAPTER V - THE PERFORMING AND CREATIVE ARTS

1. Performing Arts
2. Creative Arts - Exhibits

CENTENNIAL PROGRAMS IN THE PERFORMING ARTS AND CENTENNIAL EXHIBITS

The 13th Festival of Contemporary Arts, which has established for itself an international reputation for quality, variety, and innovation, was just opening as the Centennial Year began. Since the Festival includes all areas of activities in both the performing and creative arts, we have combined the report of Centennial Activities in those two areas in one Chapter, but divided it into two sections.

1. CENTENNIAL YEAR PROGRAMS IN THE PERFORMING ARTS

The University of Illinois, never within its Century of existence has had such a notable program of concerts, dramatic productions, popular presentations, and performing arts activities as were presented in the Centennial Year. The Concert and Entertainment Board (Star Course), the Assembly Hall Management, the University Theaters, the Department of Speech, the School of Music, and all Divisions of the Illini Union selected events of outstanding quality and character.

The Star Course and Assembly Hall Managements combined their efforts to present a Centennial Series which included the New York Philharmonic Orchestra with Leonard Bernstein; Van Cliburn, Pianist; The American Ballet Theater; the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra of London with Vaclav Neumann; and the opera production "The Visitation" during the Fifth and Final Major Event. Other opera productions during the year included "Falstaff" by the American Opera Company, and several by the School of Music units.

Star Course presented three additional Series - a chamber music series, its standard program, and popular programs. The Concert held in the Chicago Civic Opera House, utilizing some four hundred musicians and choral groups from the School of Music, also presented in the Assembly Hall on Mother's Day Weekend, is described in detail in the section on Alumni Activities. The University Concert Band commissioned Burrill Phillips, well known composer, to write a special number for its January 12-13, 1968 Festival of Contemporary Band Music, and the number "Fantasia for a Centennial" was given its first presentation at that time.

In the popular Music Area, the Assembly Hall and Star Course presented an outstanding series to meet the interests of a wide variety of listeners - from Bob Hope to Andy Williams and Henry Mancini, and from Pete Fountain to the Jefferson Airplane.

The University Theater produced "Under the Gaslight" as a special Centennial number - a play produced exactly a century before on Broadway - and added a wide variety of other plays to its series. The Assembly Hall continued its series of Broadway Company Road Shows. The Old Vic Company of Bristol, England, presented "Hamlet" and "Romeo and Juliet".

Name after name could be mentioned - The Merce Cunningham Dance Company with John Cage; Claude Kipnis, Marcel Marceau, Pantomimists; Nikhil Banerjee, Sitarist; Simon and Garfunkel; the New York Pro Musica; Hans Conreid; Dorothy Lamour, and Tom Ewell.

See Appendix S for the list of Centennial Events in the Performing Arts.

2. CREATIVE ARTS - EXHIBITS

The exhibit sections of the Festival of Contemporary Arts provided an outstanding beginning for this element of the Centennial at the Krannert Art Museum, the Architecture Building, the Arts Building, and Bevier Hall, but from the start there were outstanding exhibits in the Medical Center, at Chicago Circle, the Libraries, the Union Buildings, the Classical and European Culture Museum, and in various departmental museums.

Outstanding units in the Festival of Contemporary Arts were the Graduate Urban Designs, Contemporary American Paintings and Sculpture, American Craftsman, and the Work of Kenzo Tange. Added Centennial exhibits in Krannert Art Museum were Dutch Graphics, World Photography, Pre-Columbian Art from Peru, Festival Designs by Inigo Jones, the Work of Enrique Castro-Cid, and a Century of Design.

Director Oscar Dodson of the Classical and European Culture Museum planned a series of Centennial related exhibits of pottery, Canadian Relations, lamps, Alaskan materials, and glassware. The Library prepared exhibits of books, maps, periodicals, and other materials of every major event in the Centennial Year.

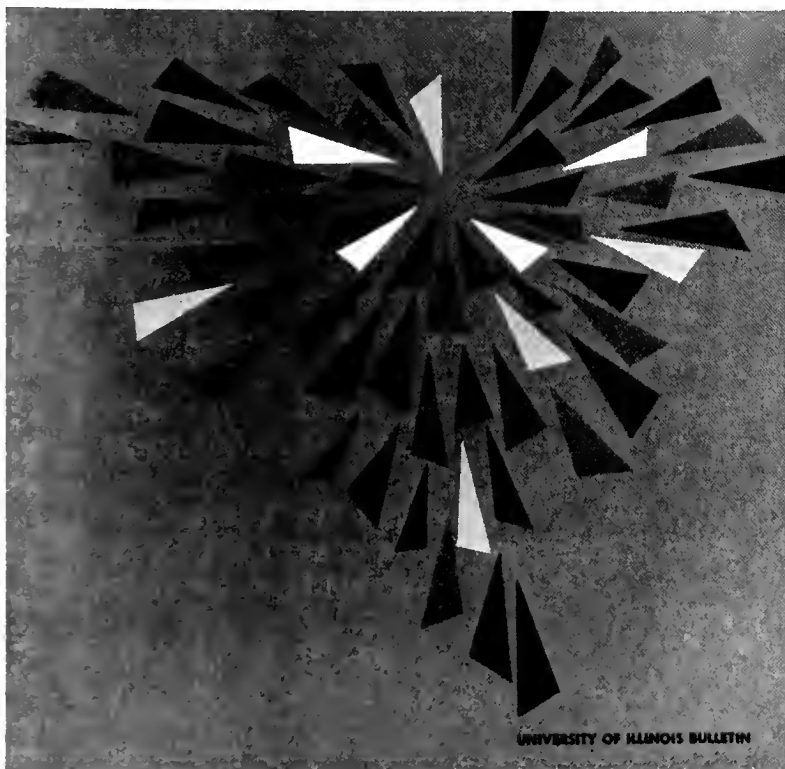

Too much praise cannot be given to those in charge of exhibits at the Medical Center and Chicago Circle, who provided a continuous series of paintings, prints, photographs, sculptures, posters, books, and other material of Centennial or current interest.

The outstanding traveling exhibit from the Chicago Medical Center was shown at the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry, at Chicago Circle, at the American National Bank in Chicago, and in the Illini Union at Urbana.

The Calendar of Exhibits on the three campuses is in Appendix T.

CHAPTER VI - BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS, CEREMONIES

1. Buildings Dedicated, Ground-Breaking Ceremonies, Buildings Under Construction, Building and Ground Features, Special Exercises, and Ceremonies.
2. Calendar of Functions.

1. BUILDINGS DEDICATED, GROUND-BREAKING CEREMONIES, BUILDINGS UNDER CONSTRUCTION, AND BUILDING AND GROUND FEATURES

In the advanced planning of the Centennial Year it appeared that the dedication of the Krannert Center for the Performing Arts might become a major, if not, the major item in the Centennial Year. Before the Centennial Year actually began it was clear that delays would prevent this dedication as a major feature.

Six building units were dedicated within the Centennial Year, two with simple ceremonies, and four with rather elaborate programs. The new Chicago Illini Union building on the Medical Center campus, and the Leah F. Trelease and Richard J. Oglesby Residence Halls at Urbana were dedicated with simple ceremonies. The Materials Research Laboratory, the Coordinated Science Laboratory, and the Civil Engineering Building at Urbana, and the restored Hull House project at Chicago Circle served not only as the dedication program, but also provided an opportunity for rather extensive educational programs built around the dedication sponsored in each case by the appropriate educational unit.

Ground-breaking ceremonies were carried out for five new buildings on the Urbana-Champaign campus - three at Chicago Circle, and two at the College of Medicine. Buildings under construction throughout the entire Centennial Year included eight at Chicago Circle, three at Urbana, and one at the Medical Center.

There were other related features in the area of buildings and grounds including the recognition of the Morrow Plots as a national landmark, the gift of the Centennial Court and Mall by the Class of 1917, a fund to assist in the redevelopment of the West Entrance to the Administration Building by the Centennial Class of 1967, Centennial plantings on the Chicago Circle Campus, and in the Chicago Park System and a tree planting program of the Champaign County Development Council. All of these items played an important part in the interest of the Centennial Year, and there were wide public relation features connected with them. The restoration of Hull House in Chicago probably attracted more national, and even international, attention than did any other item.

The Calendar of Buildings Dedicated, Ground-breaking Ceremonies, Buildings Under Construction, and Ground and Landscape Features during the Centennial Year is in Appendix U and V.

CHAPTER VII - PUBLICATIONS

1. PUBLICATIONS IN THE CENTENNIAL YEAR

An impressive list of publications has been assembled: books prepared specifically for the Centennial Year, books related to the Centennial Year, booklets, pamphlets, bulletins, reports, newspapers, newspaper supplements, and periodical records.

The first booklet to have wide distribution was the pamphlet, "From a Distinguished Past - A Promising Future", which stated the aims of the Centennial and gave the major plans for the Year. Four editions and some 25,000 copies of this booklet were distributed in advance of the Year.

The magazine supplement, "Impact", which was distributed on February 26, 1967, just before the opening of the Centennial Year, had a distribution of some 2,000,000 copies. This supplement, "The University of Illinois After 100 Years", proved to be of unusual interest in securing attention for the Centennial.

The first Centennial book, "Some Founding Papers of the University of Illinois", compiled by Richard Hatch, with an introduction by President Henry, gave the background for the establishment of the University.

A second book, "An Early View of the Land Grant Colleges", publishing the proceedings of the "Convention of Friends of Agricultural Education", which was held in 1871, is an important document relating to the early years of the institution.

A paperback volume, "An Illini Century", was edited by Roger Ebert, former editor of The Daily Illini, and carries an introduction by Dr. Mark Van Doren. This publication reviews one hundred years of campus life as shown by excerpts from The Illini from its earliest days. It has had wide and popular sales.

The catalog of the 1967 Centennial Year Festival of Contemporary Arts, with the Foreword by Dean Allen S. Weller, maintained the high position of this series of catalogs and carries special Centennial designations.

A biography of the First Regent of the Illinois Industrial University entitled, "John Milton Gregory and the University of Illinois", was published by the University Press near the end of the Centennial Year.

A popular history of the College of Law, with the Foreword by John E. Cribbet, "Law in the Grand Manner, 1897-1967" was the first of a series of Centennial college histories to appear.

One of the most popular Centennial publications was "Man and Ideas in Engineering" by Elizabeth H. Schillinger, Rudy D. Berg and Alan Kingery. This publication, carrying 12 dramatic accounts of historical achievements in the College of Engineering, is not only a fine technical publication but also is written for popular reading.

Dean Allen S. Weller and Director Charles S. Havens prepared the manuscript for a paperback, "One Hundred Years of Campus Architecture at the University". This book is largely pictorial but carrying important statements concerning architectural developments is receiving wide acclaim.

The "Pictorial History of the Medical Center Campus" edited by Donald Martin, was published just after the end of the Centennial Year, but is the best document to date on this campus.

The First Volume of the Centennial History of the University of Illinois by Professor Winton U. Solberg was completed, and publication date by the University of Illinois Press was announced in December, 1968.

The overlap in time with the State Sesquicentennial justifies the inclusion of several publications related both to the University Centennial and the State Sesquicentennial.

The various Symposia and Colloquia during the Centennial Year have produced several pamphlets, covers addresses made during the function, and more of these are now being printed.

The complete Bibliography of all Centennial publications may be found in Appendix W at the end of this report.

CHAPTER VIII - STUDENT PARTICIPATION AND ACTIVITIES

1. STUDENT PARTICIPATION IN THE CENTENNIAL YEAR ACTIVITIES

Student participation in the activities of the Centennial Year was truly symbolized on February 28, 1967, the designated opening day, when Mr. Richard G. Anderson, Engineering '67, raised the American Flag on the Quadrangle at 8:00 a.m. He was accompanied by student members of his Committee on the Centennial, a student R.O.T.C. Honor Guard, the band (students), and an aviation overflight - students. On the same day, student choral groups sang special concerts during the noon hour at the Chicago Medical Center and Chicago Circle Campuses.

Mr. Anderson, designated by the Student Senate as student representative on the Central Centennial Committee of 1963-64, served in that capacity and as Chairman of the Student Committee on the Centennial through the entire period of planning and realization of those plans. Student members were included on the Chicago Medical Center and Chicago Circle Centennial Committees.

On February 27, 1967, between the halves of the Minnesota-Illinois basketball game, Mr. Anderson was introduced, and he then introduced the members of his Committee to the audience and to the State Basketball television network. Students participated in just about every phase of Centennial activities in planning and execution.

It was not easy to provide Centennial activities which were purely student operated from start to finish, but the same is true of all phases of the activities. Nearly all involved students, faculty, staff, alumni, and citizens outside, yet the student had a vital part and clearly demonstrated great interest in Centennial activities.

Student participation consisted mainly of two areas - first, adding special Centennial themes, decorations, insignia and reference to their on-going regular activities. Second, their participation in the many academic and cultural events, either as spectators or participants. Their eagerness to have direct contact with the many distinguished visitors, informally at first, then by necessity through a "booking" or "dating" bureau established and directed by Mr. David Eisenman, a graduate student member of Dr.

Pines' Graduate College Committee.

Perhaps the most tangible direct student participation came through publications. The Illini, with its Centennial Edition on February 28, 1967, continued the Centennial theme through the year, and gave outstanding coverage to all Centennial events. The Illios of 1967 and 1968 appointed Centennial editors, and included long Centennial sections in their volumes.

The Star Course (Concert and Entertainment Board), with student member advice, included student chosen numbers in the classic and popular series.

The Illini Union Student Activities used the Centennial theme in its productions, exhibits, great debates, social events, and, particularly, helped to coordinate the use of the building for informal and formal use by visiting speakers and groups.

All the Major Activity units, Theater, Interfraternity and Panhellenic, Men's Independent and Women's Independent Residence Halls, Radio and Television, Military, Student Senate, and the Christian Associations took advantage of every possible opportunity to give Centennial tone to their affairs, then served as hosts and hostesses, ushers, helpers, in fact, did everything they could to be active, involved, and identified as part of the total program.

At the college and department level, students were involved with faculty and administration in academic functions, special ceremonies, exhibits, concerts, productions, open houses, and all general events.

To attempt to select specific items without omitting equally deserving student affairs is difficult, but a few might be mentioned. The general theme for the Centennial, "From a Distinguished Past - A Promising Future", was written by a student whose name is unknown. A class project in Journalism produced a number of suggested themes and this one was selected.

The Centennial Flag was suggested, designed, produced and presented to the University by the Men of Hopkins House in the Men's Residential Units.

The Alaskan visit by students from Alaska and by our students from all three campuses was outstanding in the Centennial and State Sesquicentennial cooperation.

At Honors Day, students had an important part in the entertainment and activities of the forty-five Honor Society visitors who attended the ceremonies, and at the Welcome in September, students literally swamped the available time of the distinguished alumni who returned for this event.

The final major event, March 6-11, 1968, would have been a distinguished event under any circumstances, but students added the element of real success by attendance, by participating, by extending hospitality, and by actually being a part of several of the major elements.

Students must be credited, however, with one unique project which they initiated, planned and carried out. True, they had assistance from the Alumni Association and Centennial Office, but it was their project. Class organizations, in a formal sense, ended in the middle 1950's. Mr. Kurt Salomon, a member of the Centennial Class of 1967, conceived the idea of reviving class organizations with the Centennial Class, and, after much effort, succeeded in securing an organization, with a sense of class unity, and a drive for funds for a Class Gift to the University in its Centennial Year. The measure of his success is demonstrated in the fact that on March 1, 1968, the Class of 1967 announced a sizable contribution to be used in the redevelopment of the main west entrance to the Administration Building with new doors, an information map, two benches, and a bronze casting with the Centennial Colophon, and memorial to the Class of 1967.

At Urbana, the Centennial opened on February 28, 1967, when the Student Chairman raised the flag on the Quadrangle at 8:00 a.m. as classes were starting. On March 11, 1968, the same student chairman, Mr. Richard G. Anderson, lowered the University Centennial Flag at sundown as the last official act of the Centennial Year.

A short list of student Centennial Events is found in Appendix X. The longer list of student participation activities is in the entire program, can be found in the total program - wherever there was an event, there were students, involved and as spectators.

CHAPTER IX - ALUMNI AND FOUNDATION ACTIVITIES

1. Alumni Affairs and Activities
2. Foundation Affairs and Activities

1. ALUMNI AFFAIRS AND ACTIVITIES IN THE CENTENNIAL YEAR

It was agreed from the earliest planning that alumni and the Alumni Association should have a prominent part in the Centennial Activities. The Presidents of the Associations were members of the Central Committee, and the Directors met regularly with the Central Committee. Three basic aims were established - to hold at least one hundred Illini Club meetings during the year; to increase the Association membership by at least 1967 new members; and to take a major part in the Fourth Major Event, the Welcome to New Students. As the year progressed, all of these goals were attained. One hundred and nine alumni meetings were held, coast to coast, north and south, and in Hawaii, Moscow, Manila, Kyoto, Tokyo, and Bogota.

The members of the Alumni Association Board were informed on May 20, 1968, "that the Centennial Year brought the greatest growth in the Association's history". Instead of the 1967 new members, the membership increased by 6,777 to a high of 39,472. The active part taken by the Association in the Fourth Major Event is reported in that section. (See Chapter III).

The activities of the Alumni groups are included in several other sections of the report, but some deserve special mention in this report of general activities. The Centennial Directory of the Chicago Illini Club was the most elaborate it has ever published. The Centennial Concert in the Chicago Civic Opera House on April 23, 1967, sponsored by the Chicago Illini Club received wide acclaim, excellent reviews, and was a major concert feature of the entire Centennial Year. The Concert presented a colorful program by the University Symphony Orchestra of one hundred, directed by Professor Bernard Goodman and some three hundred members of choral groups directed by Professor Harold Decker, and was repeated in the Assembly Hall on May 7, 1967, Mothers Day weekend. The classes of 1907, 1912, and 1917 held their Reunions at Commencement time and the Class of 1917 announced its gift of a Centennial Court and Mall. The Centennial Class of 1967 announced its gift of funds to help redevelop the West Entrance to the Administration Building. The Alumni Association officers assisted in the revival of the Class organization of the Centennial Class. (See Section on Buildings and Grounds - VI).

The three recipients of Alumni Achievement Awards at the Centennial Commencement of 1967 were:

- |                           |  |
|---------------------------|--|
| Joseph B. Lauterman, 1936 | - President of Armsted Industries                  |
| Phillip Talbot, 1936      | - United States Ambassador to Greece               |
| Oliver J. Troster, 1916   | - Partner in Troster, Singer, and Company New York |

The Class Reunion of the Class of 1921 was held October 13-14, 1967.

The Chicago Circle Campus and Medical Center held numerous functions and the Centennial Year showed the greatest period of activity for these groups that they have enjoyed to date. (See Appendix Y for the Calendar of Alumni Functions in the Centennial Year).

2. THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS FOUNDATION IN THE CENTENNIAL YEAR

In the planning of the Centennial Year, with the stress on academic and cultural aspects, it was agreed that it should not become merely a vehicle for fund raising. The Centennial Year report of the University of Illinois Foundation indicates that alumni and friends of the University responded well to this policy by contributing generously and by some outstanding Centennial Year gifts.

The Foundation announced the formation of "The Founders 100 Club" as a special recognition to any persons contributing $100 or more, in the Centennial Year; the response was an amazing return from over 3500 individuals.

Other outstanding gifts through the Foundation in the year included:

The presentation of the ownership of "The American Journal of Psychology" by Dr. Karl M. Dallenbach, a distinguished alumnus of the University. (See Honorary Degrees).

Three more contributions to the collections in the Krannert Art Museum by Mrs. Herman Krannert:

"The Drover's Cart" by Gainsborough
 "La Famille de Bourbon-Conti" by Lancret
 "Bust of Beethoven" by Bourdelle

A total of sixteen new special scholarships and aid funds at the Chicago Medical Center Campus.

The acquisition of the Fred Olsen collection of Pre-Columbian Peruvian Art valued at $365,000 by gifts of Mr. Olsen, and Mr. Frederick A. Jorgensen, an alumnus of the University in the Class of 1905. The collection has been placed in the Krannert Art Museum.

The Chicago Circle fund in Memory of Dr. Arthur D. Pickett, Director of the Honor's Program at Chicago Circle, who lost his life in a plane crash near Da Nang, South Vietnam, March 23, 1967.

The construction of an addition of some 35000 square feet of exhibition, storage, and work space to the Krannert Art Museum, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Krannert.

The gift of Mr. Harlan E. Moore to the Krannert Art Museum of the Theresa E. and Harlan E. Moore Collection of decorative art objects of English Ceramics and American Glass.

The complete report of gifts through the Foundation in the Centennial Year appears in the printed reports of the Foundation. (See Bibliography - Appendix W).

We believe that the policy of giving, adopted for the Centennial Year proved its worth in the variety, quality, and increase in gifts during the year.

CHAPTER X - MISCELLANEOUS

1. Centennial Flags
2. Relation to the State of Illinois Sesquicentennial Celebration
3. Centennial Year Social Events
4. Congressional Record - April 1, 1968
5. Three Unfortunate Events
6. Photographs and other Historical Materials
7. Citizen Interest
8. Resolution of Appreciation for the Centennial Celebration

1. RECORD OF THE SEVEN EXISTING UNIVERSITY CENTENNIAL FLAGS

1. The original Flag, which was presented to the University by the men of Hopkins Hall, was flown on the West Flagpole near the plaza in front of the Auditorium. It was smaller than the United States Flag and the State Flag on the other two flagpoles. During the summer it was replaced by the 6 x 10' Flag, matching the other two in size. The original Flag was then cleaned and presented to President David D. Henry.

2. The second Flag, size 6 x 10', replaced the original Flag and was flown in the Quadrangle until March 11, 1968. It was lowered for the last time at sundown on March 11; has been cleaned and will be included in the records in the Archives for the Centennial Year. This Flag is in the possession of the Chairman of the Committee on the Centennial, and will be placed in the University Archives.

3. Presented to Chancellor Norman A. Parker at the Chicago Circle Campus.

4. Presented to Chancellor Joseph S. Begando, Chicago Medical Center Campus.

5. Presented to Chancellor Jack W. Peltason, Urbana-Champaign Campus.

6. Presented to Mr. Timothy W. Swain, President of the Board of Trustees on July 24, 1968.

7. The seventh Flag, size 3 x 5', was presented to Secretary of State Paul Powell in his office in the State House by the Chairman of the Centennial Committee on December 13, 1968. Secretary Powell indicated that this flag would be delivered to the Director of the Illinois State Archives Division for permanent retention in that Division.

2. RELATION TO THE STATE OF ILLINOIS SESQUICENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

It was known early in the planning for the observance of the Centennial Year at the University of Illinois that there would probably be some overlap in calendar between the two celebrations. This became clear with the determination of the University Centennial Year being scheduled from February 28, 1967 to March 11, 1968, and the likelihood that the State's celebration of its 150th Anniversary would begin December 3, 1967 to run until December 3, 1968. The overlap in calendars proved to be the period from December 3, 1967 to March 11, 1968.

Agreed to No Conflict

The Chairman of the University Centennial Committee was designated by the President as the liaison officer to represent the University with the state planning.

The first meeting to explore plans for the State celebration was held in Springfield on April 23, 1965. At this meeting, which was chaired by Mr. Ralph G. Newman, later to be the Chairman of the Illinois Sesquicentennial Commission, and by Governor Otto Kerner, there was discussion of a wide range of topics. The mention of the possible conflict of dates between the University ceremonies and the state's planning was solved promptly with the decision that they should complement each other rather than conflict. This point of view was maintained throughout the period of the University's Centennial Year. An early decision related to the fact that since the State of Illinois would undoubtedly seek a commemorative postage stamp, the University would make no attempt to secure a postage issue.

The First Major Sesquicentennial Conference

The first major Sesquicentennial organizational and planning conference was held in the Ballroom of the Illini Union on Monday, April 18. The meeting was attended by some 800 state and county representatives, who spent the day in general conference and in special interest groups. Chairman Ralph G. Newman was the presiding officer, and the major address was made by Governor Otto Kerner. It was from this meeting that the general state-wide planning began.

General Communications

There was a wide exchange of ideas between members of the State Commission and University officers at many levels and numerous departments. Much of this was on a consulting basis with University officers serving as consultants. Prior to the opening of the State Sesquicentennial, Mrs. Helen P. Geraghty, Chairman of the Arts Program of the Illinois Sesquicentennial, arranged for the trial presentation of a Sesquicentennial play. This play "Make Her Wilderness Like Eden" was presented in the Illini Union on November 19, 1967 before a jury selected by Mrs. Geraghty, and including a number of University theater personages.

There was much correspondence and conference study with the University History Department and the University Press.

Some Specific Sesquicentennial-University Centennial Activities

Professor Webster Smalley wrote and produced the play, "Taste for Violence" which was presented in Lincoln Hall Theater, December 6-9, 1967. The play, based on the life of Owen Lovejoy, was made available for Sesquicentennial use in the state.

In the period from November 28 through December 13, a joint function was carried out covering the University Centennial, the State Sesquicentennial, the Golden Anniversary of the University of Alaska, and the Centennial of the Territory of Alaska. From November 28 to December 6, 1967 six undergraduate students and a faculty advisor from the University of Alaska, visited Governor Kerner, the State Capitol, and the Lincoln Monuments, and the three campuses of the University of Illinois.

From December 6 to December 13, 1967 six students from the three campuses of the University of Illinois and a faculty advisor visited Alaska, and the University of Alaska. There was wide news coverage of this event, both on the national and local level.

The University was involved in the State Sesquicentennial observance held in Lincoln Square in Urbana from February 11-25, 1968. The plan to place on display in Lincoln Square the model historical rooms owned by Carson, Pirie, Scott and Company, and the 16 historical paintings commissioned by the Illinois Bell Telephone Company were shown in the Lincoln Square Plaza. To this the Secretary of State added a number of documents from the State Archives, and in order to participate actively, Dr. Robert B. Downs of the University Library, selected and prepared 8 display cases of materials from the University archives and rare book collections, which added appreciably to the total display.

It should be noted that the historical write-ups for the paintings were written by Professor Robert Sutton of the History Department, and reproductions of the oil paintings have been published by the University Press. Also, from this function, the management of Lincoln Square sponsored an Essay Contest among preparatory school children at the grade and high school level in the county. The judges to consider the essays were provided from the staff of the University.

As a Sesquicentennial function the University Press reprinted a new edition of Dr. Solon Buck's "Centennial History of the State of Illinois" with a Sesquicentennial introduction by the distinguished historian and University alumnus, Allan Nevins.

Inclusion of the University Functions in the State Calendar.

There was sufficient cooperation between the State and University committees to make it possible for all major University Centennial functions between December 3, 1967 and March 11, 1968 to be carried in the Official Sesquicentennial Calendar of Events. This included academic functions as well as athletic and entertainment items.

End of the University Centennial Year

Congressman William L. Springer, Champaign, in an address which appears in The Congressional Record under date of April 1, 1968, states:

"The University Centennial flag (flown on the University Quadrangle) was lowered for the last time at sundown on March 11, 1968, and the Illinois State Sesquicentennial flag replaced it on March 12, 1968, to be flown along with the American and Illinois flags through the remainder of the State's Sesquicentennial Year ending in December 1968".

Note: The State Sesquicentennial Flag mentioned above was flown until December 4, 1968, the State Celebration having ended December 3, 1968. It was then returned to the Office of the Director of the Centennial, and will be delivered to the University Archives Division along with the University Centennial material.

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 90th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

University of Illinois Centennial

HON. WILLIAM L. SPRINGER

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, April 1, 1968

Mr. SPRINGER. Mr. Speaker, the centennial year of the University of Illinois has just ended. The convocation of March 11, 1968, marked the close of the final major event on the centennial calendar which began on February 28, 1967.

The plans for the centennial year were prepared as a basic academic program of dignity and quality under the able direction of Dean Fred H. Turner. Five major events were planned with centennial features and accouterments added to all on-going activities and special activities between major events.

The first of the five major events was held in Gov. Otto Kerner's office at the State capitol in Springfield on February 28, 1967, memorializing the signing of the bill by Gov. Richard J. Oglesby on February 28, 1867, establishing the new State university under the Land Grant Act of 1862; the second major event was centered on the May Honors Day programs at the three campuses; the third, the commencement and graduation of the centennial classes of 1967, in June; the fourth, the welcome to new students in September; and the final centennial week at Urbana-Champaign, March 6-11, 1968.

In between these major events, there was a crowded program of symposiums, lectures, conferences, conventions, convocations, concerts, dramatic events, building dedications and ground-breaking ceremonies, centennial books and publications, and an outstanding series of radio, television, motion picture, and press activities. If any aspects in the programs stood out particularly, they would include—first, the excellent quality of all, and the unprecedented interest and participation of students, staff, alumni, and citizens in the numerous events, which certainly are worthy of a great university.

It might be added that the university centennial flag was lowered for the last time at sundown on March 11, 1968, and the Illinois State sesquicentennial flag replaced it on March 12, 1968, to be flown along with the American and Illinois flags through the remainder of the State's sesquicentennial year ending in December 1968.

The closing convocation on March 11 was addressed by University of Illinois President David D. Henry. Dr. Henry's address was so appropriate, not only for the University of Illinois, but for all land-grant institutions in their second centuries, that I am including it in full at this point. I also include an article from the Champaign News-Gazette, by Diana Moore, quoting Governor Otto Kerner's remarks at the convocation:

THE LAND-GRANT UNIVERSITY IN ITS SECOND CENTURY

(Centennial Convocation Address by President David D. Henry, University of Illinois, Assembly Hall, Urbana-Champaign Campus, Monday, March 11, 1968)

I

With this convocation, we close the Centennial Year of the University of Illinois. Its theme has been, "From a Distinguished Past, a Promising Future."

Examination of the past has been reassuring. We have noted great achievements and they have stirred our pride as we identified the University with historical benchmarks—in science, technology, humanities, the arts and the professions. The agriculture, industry, business, government and social organization of the State and Nation have been influenced by what has been discovered and encouraged at this University. People's lives have been enriched—through countless public services, from the outcomes of research, and from the contributions of the tens of thousands who have been formally enrolled.

We have, however, looked forward even more than we have looked back. Aware that many now enrolled in the University will spend their most productive years in the 21st century, the centennial events have been designed for analysis of trends and potentialities in the long view.

Students, faculty, and alumni, in company with outstanding visiting commentators and observers, with artists, scholars, and public leaders have canvassed, among many subjects, science and the human condition; man and the multitude in the search for the values in our culture; the university in motion, a matrix for the arts; urban education and the study of urban affairs; changing concepts in all the major disciplines; business and social responsibility; world food needs; and education for the 21st century.

War and peace and race relations, two overriding concerns of the present, have, of course, been a part of the context of all of the programs.

The intellectual life of the University has been immeasurably enriched, enlarged and strengthened by the stimulating discourse which has been presented, not alone on the campuses, but to the larger public through radio, television, books, monographs and meetings.

The observance of the Centennial Year has in itself been a historic event in the life of the University and of Illinois; and we believe that the benefits have rippled out to a very large audience. Agencies and institutions around the world have sent their greetings and felicitations, for which we are most grateful.

From the inspiration of this year, we are moved to carry on with increasing energy and spirit, in the great academic tradition, described on a similar occasion three years ago by President James A. Perkins of Cornell University: "From the very beginning, the idea of the university has been nourished by and it has contributed to the great universal imperatives of the Western world: the respect for reason, the distaste for unexplained inequality, the compassion for the individual spirit, and the compulsion to be of service to all mankind."

II

On celebrating an anniversary, one is tempted to engage in forecast as well as reminiscence.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

Fifty years ago, President Edmund J. James included some prophecy in his introduction to the Semi-Centennial History of the University. He claimed that the changes in the University by 1968 would outreach 1918 to a greater extent than the latter's comparison with 1868 because "The world of 1968 will be more vastly different." He noted: "Prophecies of the men who labored to secure the foundation of this institution were large and far reaching, but none of them equalled the reality, none of them appreciated what the possibilities of the next fifty years were to be, and they would all be greatly surprised at this institution now if they could return to view it. Our fate will doubtless be the same."

However, in many ways, President James foretold what has come to pass. We have not achieved the goal of no fees for students, but we have maintained the low-fee principle. We have not reached the five-million library books which he predicted, but we have come close and have a ranking among the great university libraries of the world. His prophecies on buildings and equipment, on breadth of curriculum, on expansion in the advanced areas of learning, including the professions, and on faculty salaries and conditions of work have been fulfilled. Only on enrollment did he miss the mark significantly; he said, "Our five thousand students may have become ten or fifteen or twenty thousand." His maximum was nearly 25,000 short of the number recorded in the fall of 1967.

More to the point, however, is the fact that President James' statement of purpose for the University is one which we honor today: "Let Illinois become one of the holy places in the history of the human spirit. . . . Let it be counted one of the very greatest because it has ministered most to the welfare of mankind."

And yet, as we express our respects for these moving words, I would be less than candid if I did not quickly note that our capability for forecasting is more limited than was his. Our confidence in the future importance of the University is no less firm, our optimism as to its future achievements is no less dynamic, and our faith in the eventual attainment of the ideals of the academic community generally is no less enduring. But the map of progress previously followed has been obscured by the climactic problems with which we must now deal. The forces which now move our society will in turn affect our University in ways beyond our present perception.

At this turn of a century, we must acknowledge that the University of Illinois is in transition. Another has described this condition as a time of "no longer and not yet." We no longer have room for all the qualified young people who seek admission and yet this situation is not likely to change. Our public services, once directed to individual consumers, are now designed for the preparation and continuing education of professional people who in turn will reach the larger public clientele—in teaching, social work, and public administration to name a few. The complex needs of society have placed new demands upon the University at the advanced levels of education; and the vast increase in knowledge requires that the retraining of graduates be given a high priority. The contributions of research have created a demand for more, and the University is pressed for answers to questions which in other times would not have been asked.

Although we do not have the ingredients for specific prophecy, I believe that future strength and future usefulness go hand in hand and that our chief institutional characteristic must continue to be comprehensiveness—comprehensiveness in service, in levels of education, in scope and nature of program. Here, I do not mean that the University can be all things to all people; but I do mean that our strength in the future, as in the past, is our role as a people's University.

I hope that our plans for the future will be set in a pattern which will always include expectation for high quality of academic performance, for the best conditions for student life and individual growth, for a capability for innovation and experimentation in the educational process, for a continuing search for opportunity to do what the University is especially qualified to do. At the same time, our contribution to the public welfare, broadly conceived, must not be restricted by elitism of any kind. I repeat, while the University cannot be all things to all people, it should strive to merit the gratitude, regard, respect and affection of the people whom it directly and indirectly serves.

III

Out of the many forces which will affect the future of the University, I mention three as defined recently by Sir Eric Ashby. These are the pressure from students to enter the system, the manpower needs for graduates, and the historic inner logic of the system itself which makes for a high degree of institutional autonomy.

There is little likelihood that the demands for student admissions will decrease in the short or long future. The projections, based on the number of children now born, carry us firmly into the eighties and the trend of a century takes us farther. An increase in the population base and the increasing proportion of that base who desire post-high school education will in numbers more than offset any decline in the birth rate itself.

An important factor in the continuing demand for enrollment is student evaluation of the college experience. In spite of current dissent to the contrary, career preparation remains an important factor in motivation. A part of that preparation will be an enlarged understanding of our world and times; and still appreciated is the premise that education is the chief means of social mobility in a democratic society.

How will the University meet the student demand for educational opportunity? It is to be regretted that not all qualified applicants who now seek to enter the University of Illinois as a matter of choice are or will be able to do so. A high degree of freedom of choice is a factor in the educational success of the student with the corollary educational benefits for people which state system should aspire to provide.

Obviously, in a state program for higher education diversity which provides varied systems and institutions differently organized is an appropriate objective. However, the typing of institutions to gain a simplistic map of diversity, limits the natural and healthy growth of the institutions and restricts the freedom of choice of students.

Illinois has embarked upon the organization of a group of multi-campus systems. The three campuses of the University of Illinois comprise one of them. Unless the University of Illinois is permitted to grow, along with the others, through the development of additional campuses, including some of limited mission, as well as through enlargement of the present ones, the State will lose some of the benefit of its investment in the University and the proportion of young people in Illinois who may earn a University of Illinois degree will continue to decline. Directing student attendance into preconceived types of institutions, through unduly limiting freedom of choice, is not sound public policy or sound education. Ultimately, parents, students and employers will resist such an arrangement.

A central question in the days ahead is thus posed: Will the University, in its next Century, have the freedom to grow and develop as it has in the past and will the qualified young people of Illinois be reasonably free to gain admission to its programs and services?

IV

The longtime demand for admission to the University is clear. What shall we say about the role of its graduates in the context of the manpower needs of the country?

In his 1968 Education message to the Congress, the President of the United States declared:

" . . . For now we call upon higher education to play a new and more ambitious role in our social progress, our economic development, our efforts to help other countries.

"We depend upon the universities—their training, research and extension services—for the knowledge which undergirds agricultural and industrial production.

"Increasingly, we look to higher education to provide the key to better employment opportunities and a more rewarding life for our citizens.

"As never before, we look to the colleges and universities—to their faculties, laboratories, research institutes and study centers—for help with every problem in our society and with the efforts we are making toward peace in the world."

In this comment, we have a forecast of the demand for college and university graduates as well as an enunciation of policy as to the role of the Federal Government in helping institutions meet the complex needs of society.

The university has become a part of the economic resources of the state and nation.

The education of students, the discovery of new knowledge and the extension of public service are now to be regarded as an investment, not an expense. The state or nation that will not make this investment will lose ground in the struggle for human and social advancement.

Peter Schrag has made the point in these words, "... the new industrial state ... has developed a voracious appetite for highly trained individuals and a major dependency on the institutions which produce them. ... Education has now the greatest solemnity of social purpose."

After the flow of students into the University and their graduation into key tasks in service to society, Sir Eric Ashby's third major force in the shaping of a university is described as the inner logic of the system.

In structure and management, the university is different from any other organization. The faculty members are full professional partners in determining educational policy and ordering the educational process. Students are not merely silent and compliant consumers but at once apprentices and clients in the world of learning and citizens of an academic community. They are also citizens of the state and nation and in each category have natural expectations as to their part in influencing the world in which they live. The larger citizenry is not merely a constituency to supply funds; it is made up of parents, alumni, employers, civic leaders—literally millions of people whose interest in the university is quite personal and who expect and are entitled to be heard on the goals, objectives and effectiveness of the university.

This complex of factors affecting the governance of a university is made the more difficult to manage under newly organized demands of our time. One may mention, as examples, the impact of Federal programs, the militancy of teachers' organizations and civil rights groups, and other organizations who press demands. To this list might be added alumni, donors, planning boards, public officials and the structured voices of the university's constituencies and of society generally.

One must not forget, too, that controls or limitations are not always apparent. Sometimes they take the form of direct restriction on appropriations or facilities but often they are reflected in limited alternatives in program offerings and research endeavor. Whether the source of the restriction is the State Government, the Federal Government, the organized minority, the philanthropist or the editorial writer, the impingement upon institutional autonomy can be as serious as more obvious examples.

The mere recitation of the forces and pressures affecting the university, heightened by the growing public expectation for higher education, as reflected in President Johnson's words, suggests the new importance of institutional autonomy.

Institutional autonomy in this setting does not mean freedom from external influence, from evaluation or ultimate control by those who have direct governance responsibility. It does mean a framework of operation that will include the professor's freedom to teach and to do research according to standards defined inside the university; immunity from political partisanship or patronage and a high degree of self-determination of the conditions of internal operation and academic and campus life.

The conservation of institutional autonomy as here defined, which is, I believe, the final protection of academic freedom as historically conceived, rests not with laws and rules of organization or with manifestos and resolutions but with the faith of the people in the integrity of the institution and the devotion of the people to support the institutions' perennial search for new knowledge and for truth. Where such faith and dedication exist, institutions enjoy academic freedom to the fullest. Where they do not exist, restrictions, direct or indirect, may be expected. Our goal here, then, is the never-ending search for public understanding and acceptance of the fundamental missions of the university.

The tasks of public interpretation are enormous and complex, particularly as the ultimate determination of many university actions moves from the traditional mechanisms of other days into channels of a variety of influences which currently impinge upon the governance of the university.

Coping with these influences in preserving the basic traditions of academic endeavors becomes increasingly difficult but, obviously, increasingly important.

While the "efficiency of freedom" requires a dependence upon the professional character of the faculty and upon professional direction of the university, these attributes of the strong university do not allow for isolation of the institution from the broad purposes of society. Hence, there is no room for nihilism, for anarchy, for destructive forces, however organized. Reason, rational debate and intellectual analysis must be the framework for decisions in university governance.

The university is a social institution created by society for its own conservation and for its own advancement. It does not belong to the students or the faculty or to officers of internal or external government—it has been created by the people and it derives its strength from the confidence of the people in its purposes and its significance.

That university will prosper which recognizes its "grassroots" and which works to preserve its identity with the broad purposes for which it was established. Education for relevance must remain a constant in the changing public university. It has been a people's university in concept and in form; and I believe that this concept and form will be as viable in the next century as in the past one.

In the record of the land-grant colleges and state universities, it is clear that each generation of leadership and each period of growth added a new layer of strength through distinctive innovation. After the institutions were established and their purposes set forth, with emphasis on agriculture and the mechanic arts, the battle for broadly-based curricula in science and the liberal arts was fought and won. Then came the proliferation of the professions, including technology, and training for them. Graduate education was added, as were extension and basic research.

But within the many changes, Mr. Allan Nevins points out, there has been continuity in devotion to a single commitment—a commitment to serve democracy.

It was to serve democracy that the three great ideas of the land-grant movement evolved—wide educational opportunity, comprehensive curricula, and diversification of education service in instruction, in extension and in research. I believe that these ideas are and will continue to be valid although, of course, they are to be applied to a setting totally different from the mid-nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Fundamental changes in American life have occurred and now constitute a new context of our work. Others are in the making. The tensions of war, race relations at home and the complex problems accompanying the rise of underdeveloped countries are but several of the items on the agenda for tomorrow which will affect our colleges and universities as well as all other aspects of American life.

The fundamental wants of our people, as in any country, developed or underdeveloped, have to do with food, housing, employment, health care, education and a satisfying social life. The elements in this list are easily identified but supplying them equitably and adequately is exceedingly complex. Solutions to the problems of our cities, of water and air pollution, of disease and health care, of family austere and decent family living conditions, and of equality of individual opportunity for education and employment as means to human dignity have their roots in the discovery of new knowledge, its useful application, the preparation of specialists and broad education of all who seek it. These are functions of the university—indeed, the university is the only major agency for objective analysis and for creative experimentation. The task is awesome and the stakes are high; hence the challenge and the opportunities are the greater.

As the University enters its second century, it is mindful of its strength and achievements. This fact does not induce complacency, however. The past is indeed prologue, and the agenda for the future suggest that the work to be done is of such importance that it will command the dedicated service of all who believe in the greatness of the University of Illinois.

We have no reason to change, for the next century, the article of faith set down by

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

Jonathan Baldwin Turner as he envisioned the land-grant university at the start of the past century:

"The sun never shone on such a nation, and such a power, as this would soon be, with such facilities of public advancement and improvement put into full and vigorous operation. Set all the millions of eyes in this great Republic to watching, and intelligently observing and thinking, and there is no secret of nature or art we cannot find out; no disease of man or beast we cannot understand, no evil we cannot remedy; no obstacle we cannot surmount; nothing that lies in the power of man to do or to understand, that cannot be understood and done."

May this call to greatness continue to inspire us in the years to come!

UI PAST GUARANTEE TO FUTURE: KERNER
(By Diana Moore)

The future of the University of Illinois has been guaranteed by its past, Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner said Monday morning at the University's Centennial Convocation.

"You can predict the future if you know the past," the Governor said.

"And with the past this great University has had . . . I am confident that the future that we seek will be realized."

Gov. Kerner, who has been nominated by President Johnson for a federal judgeship, was greeted by a standing ovation from those present at the ceremonies honoring the University's 100th year.

"One of the first things that a governor learns upon taking office," he said, "is that the strength and weakness of the state in general, and state government in particular, rests upon the relative strength and weaknesses of the institutions of higher learning which are located in that state."

UI "BACKBONE"

"We indeed have been most fortunate in Illinois to have as the backbone of our system of higher education a great University such as the University of Illinois."

Kerner said it is "unfortunate" that the University of Illinois is better known outside the state than within.

The UI, he said, is one of the "great universities of the world."

As a part of the University's Centennial Celebration, Kerner said he was proud that the UI devoted its efforts to defining the purpose and role of today's public university.

Through examination of the University's past traditions, he said, the University's role in society is put into perspective.

Kerner noted that channels of communications have been opened outside the academic community, which has created an important change of direction in the University.

CHANGE ESSENTIAL

"Without this change we would not have progressed as we have," he said.

"The international impact of the University of Illinois is not realized by many people in Illinois," he continued.

Gov. Kerner cited agriculture, physical science, architecture and engineering as areas in which the University has had a great international impact.

"It is time now to concentrate on the future," the Governor continued.

"We leave behind 100 years of solid accomplishments and the seeds of knowledge and learning which in some cases, have already grown into bursts of achievement, and in others are still climbing towards those same goals."

"Using the outstanding analysis of the review of the University's role in our state, which was deliberately conceived during this past year, we can now build on that base toward an even greater future, one which knows no obstacles, no limits and no horizons."

Kerner said that he was fearful that much of the motivation that created the United States and its great universities "is slowing down."

The people in the Middle West, led by their great universities, such as the University of Illinois, "must take upon ourselves that aggressive philosophy," he said.

5. THREE UNFORTUNATE EVENTS

Special Centennial Course

The Division of General Studies planned and announced a Special Centennial Course, DGS 334, "The Impact of Science and Technology on National and International Affairs" to be taught by Dr. Ludwig F. Audrieth, Professor of Chemistry, Emeritus. The promise of the course was such that the advance enrollment completely exceeded the expected registration for February 1967 at the start of the Centennial Year.

Professor Audrieth died of a heart attack on January 28, 1967. Professor Harold Gulley, Director of the Division, took over the course utilizing numerous special lecturers - and with great success - but the loss of Professor Audrieth, and his background of European experiences with the Department of State, was a damper on its impact.

The McCormick Place Fire

Several Centennial events were planned to be held in the Arie Crown Theater and exhibit halls of McCormick Place in Chicago. The fire of January, 1967, which destroyed McCormick Place, necessitated the moving of these events to the Civic Opera House, International Amphitheater, Medinah Temple, and other suitable places which was done but with the loss of the glamour and functional facilities of the famous meeting hall.

Centennial Rose

A year before the beginning of the Centennial Year, negotiations were started with Mr. Eugene A. Boerner, Class of 1917, and considered to be one of the two foremost developers of new varieties of roses in the world, to develop a University of Illinois Centennial Rose. Mr. Boerner had agreed to the plan and was enthusiastic about its possibilities. In the spring of 1966 he reported excellent progress; then on September 5, 1966, he died after a short illness, and the plan was dropped.

It might be added that his associates continued his experimental work, and in the summer of 1968, "Gene S. Boerner, floribunda" was picked by the judges as the only pink A-A rose of the four "All America Roses, 1969". We have no proof that this rose was the one which Mr. Boerner had selected for our Centennial Rose - we do know that it was one on which he was working at the time of his death.

6. PHOTOGRAPHS AND OTHER HISTORICAL MATERIALS

In the course of the Centennial Year interested friends sent to the Director of the Centennial a considerable number of old photographs, catalogues, newspapers, scrapbooks, receipts, checks, and other historical items. These have been saved and are ready to present to the University Archives Division.

7. CITIZEN INTEREST

Demonstrating citizen interest in the Centennial Year, Mr. Joseph C. Fornero of Streator, Illinois, father of Joseph Carl Fornero, Class of 1970, prepared and sent a framed Centennial exhibit to President David D. Henry. Mr. Fornero, a stamp collector, secured the names of all persons involved in the Centennial administration, addressed envelopes to each, embellished them with all current memorial and standard postage stamps, and from those cancelled covers, prepared a collage picture including a photograph of President Henry. This exhibit will be deposited with other Centennial materials in the Archives.

8. RESOLUTION OF APPRECIATION FOR THE CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION ADOPTED BY THE UNIVERSITY BOARD OF TRUSTEES, MARCH 20, 1968

(See next page for facsimile of resolution).

RESOLUTION OF APPRECIATION

---

On March 11, 1968, the one hundredth anniversary of the Inauguration of the University, a Centennial Convocation at the Urbana campus brought to a close year-long celebrations on each campus which gave perspective to the achievements of the University in its first century and provided a forum for consideration of its role in the future.

From the signing by the Governor, on February 28, 1967, of a Centennial Proclamation through the entire year thereafter, this institutional milestone has been marked by a wide range of University-wide activities including lectures and colloquia, special cultural events and exhibits and involving many eminent visitors and speakers. The imagination, planning and energy of those responsible for the achievement of such a noteworthy observation deserve congratulation. It has been a year to remember!

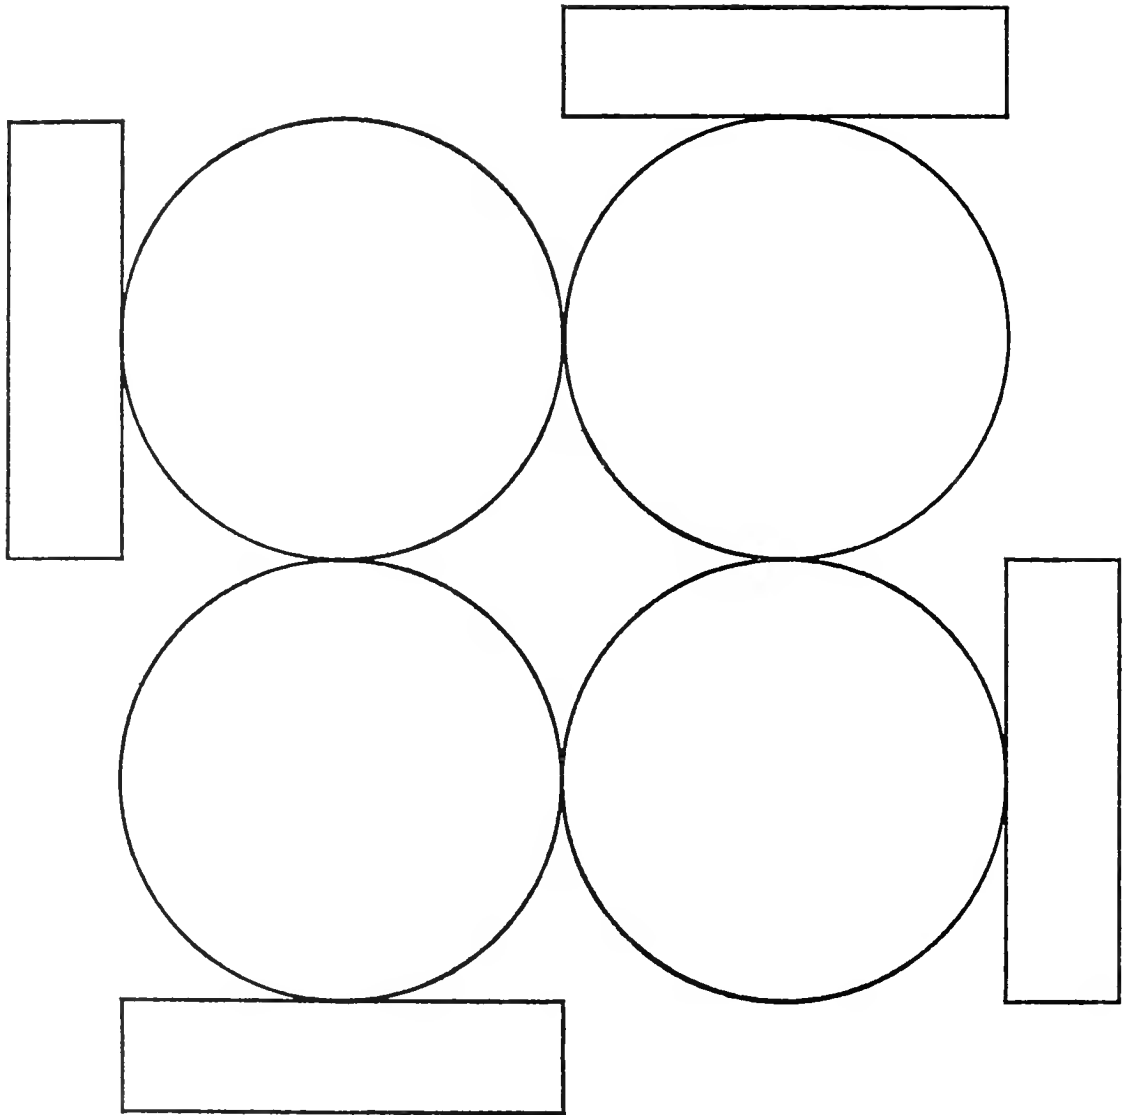

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED, that the President of the University is requested by the Board of Trustees to convey the grateful appreciation of the Board to members of the faculties, student bodies and administrative officers and staffs and to the various committees throughout the University who were involved in planning and carrying out a distinguished and highly appropriate program for the celebration of the Centennial Year of the University of Illinois.

APPENDIX: D

The charter of the University of Illinois will be one hundred years old on February 25, 1967, a date which commemorates the signing of legislation creating Illinois Industrial University by Governor Richard J. Oglesby.

From February 25, 1967 to March 11, 1968, by action of the Board of Trustees, the University will commemorate the centenary of its founding. It is an occasion of great satisfaction to be able to bring greetings to our renowned state university and to reflect upon the rich and varied contributions which it has made to this state and nation.

The Illinois Industrial University was a product of the land-grant college movement of the mid-nineteenth century. As a part of a new educational tradition its founders and leaders held that higher education was not alone for the children of a privileged aristocracy but equally for the sons and daughters of farmers, artisans and shopkeepers as well.

The evidence is convincing that the original inspiration for the land-grant movement came from a citizen of this state -- Jonathan Baldwin Turner of Jacksonville. Illinois' support for higher education has always rested on the conviction that learning could be practical as well as academic, and that higher education should be open to all who have the will and ability to profit from it.

The University of Illinois has grown from humble beginnings to national and international distinction, achieving renown for educational excellence in the arts and sciences as well as in applied areas of educational endeavor. Through its extension services, cultural activities and instructional centers it has served every area of Illinois -- urban and rural alike.

In pausing to pay tribute to this great University, we join the more than 300,000 devoted alumni around the world whose daily lives are dedicated to the philosophy of public good. In looking ahead we see for it a distinguished future with continued expansion of its educational, research and service functions as it strives to meet, in the highest traditions of excellence, the ever-growing needs of the people of Illinois, of the Midwest, of the Nation and the world.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Otto Kerner, Governor of the State of Illinois, do hereby proclaim the period from February 25, 1967 to March 11, 1968, as CENTENNIAL YEAR OF THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS, and request the appropriate observance of this historic occasion.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Illinois to be affixed.

Done at the Capitol in the City of Springfield, this SEVENTH day of FEBRUARY, in the Year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and SIXTY-SEVEN, and of the State of Illinois the one hundred and FORTY-NINTH.

The University of Illinois—A Century of Achievement

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, February 28, 1967

Mr. SPRINGER. Mr. Speaker, the University of Illinois is 100 years old today.

It has been a century of achievement. An illustrious alumnus, James B. Reston, of the New York Times, has written: "Anniversaries, rightly used, are the benchmarks of history."

Like all great institutions the University of Illinois means many things to many people. Those marking its centennial benchmark do so for widely varying reasons. The University of Illinois is noted—

For its role in the history of higher learning in this country. Starting as a land-grant college with three faculty members and 72 students it has grown into one of the Nation's top 10 universities with 42,500 students on three campuses and more than 6,500 teaching and administrative officers.

For the high quality of its instruction at both the undergraduate and graduate levels, reflected by the success of its alumni in all walks of life and by the number of students from other schools who choose it for their graduate work. Illinois ranks fourth among the Nation's universities in the number of doctorates awarded. In the American Council on Education's recently published Assessment of Quality in Graduate Education, the University of Illinois, among the more than 100 major institutions surveyed, was one of only nine which excelled in three or more areas of graduate study.

For its excellence in research. The teamwork of Illinois chemistry and chemical engineering produced such achievements as nylon and the synthetic sweetening agent, sucaryl. Three Illini have won Nobel Prizes: Edward A. Doisy for his identification and synthesis of vitamin K; Wendall M. Stanley for the isolation of crystalline viruses which play such an active role in so many animal and plant diseases, and Vincent du Vigneaud for his synthesis of the mammary gland hormone, oxytocin. Engineering research at Illinois helped make railroads safer and contributed to the development of all-channel television antenna. The university's Betatron was one of the first "atom smashers" to be used in treatment of cancer and other scientific research. The University of Illinois ranked sixth among American universities for research activities in 1966 with an expenditure of $44 million. Currently, 1,700 projects involving more than 3,000 professional researchers, in addition to graduate students and technicians, are in progress.

For its pioneering work in agriculture. The university's Morrow plots are the oldest field experimental plots in the United States. Illinois researchers helped develop hybrid corn and the modern soybean. They have been in the forefront in the development of new ideas in animal husbandry, dairy production and manufacturing, horticulture, poultry science, agricultural engineering, farm management and agricultural economics. A distinguished alumnus, a constituent of mine and no stranger to my colleagues in the Congress, is Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

For its preeminence in the arts and humanities. The Urbana campus has the largest university art department in the country. The Krannert Center for the Performing Arts, now under construction, will offer superb facilities for opera, orchestra, choral groups, theater, and dance. Renowned Illini, present and past, include Sculptor Lorado Taft; the dean of American historians, Allan Nevins; Lincoln biographers James G. Randall and Paul M. Angle; Carl Van Doren, who won the Pulitzer Prize for his "Benjamin Franklin," his brother, the Pulitzer Prize winning poet, Mark Van Doren, and authors Gerald Carson, Robert Lewis Taylor, William Maxwell, Daniel Curley, Stanley Elkin, Jack Gelber and many others.

For the wealth of its physical resources. The university library is the fifth largest of all American libraries and largest of any State university. Complementing the 71,000-seat Memorial Stadium, dedicated in 1924, is the mammoth new Assembly Hall, one of the Nation's largest indoor arenas. The new Chicago Illini Union at the Medical Center and the buildings planned and under construction at the Chicago Circle Campus are examples of the expansion still going on.

For its contributions to business and industry. Corporation presidents who graduated from Illinois include Leslie B. Worthington, United States Steel; William G. Karnes, Beatrice Foods; Harry O. Bercher, International Harvester, and Arnold O. Beckman, Beckman Instruments. William B. Greene of Barber-Greene Co., manufacturer of paving and material handling machinery; Herman C. Krannert of the Inland Container Corp.; Harold Boeschstein of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., and Robert L. Latzer of the Pet Milk Co., are Illini who now serve their respective firms as board chairmen. Clifford F. Hood, retired president of United States Steel, and Collett E. Woolman, late president of Delta Airlines, are other products of the university.

For the prowess of its athletes in various fields of sports. Such names as the immortal Harold (Red) Grange; his famed football coach, Bob Zuppke; George Halas, owner-coach of the Chicago Bears who lettered in three sports at Illinois; George A. Huff, Illinois athletic director from 1896 to 1935, and all around athlete Lou Boudreau are writ large in the history of the "Fighting Illini." Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, is an alumnus. Illinois ranks second in the alltime statistics for the number of championships in all Big Ten sports. Recent Illini football teams have won three Rose Bowl victories.

Henry T. Heald, a former president of the Ford Foundation, wrote recently:

It is impossible to rank universities on any exact basis, but no one would question that the University of Illinois is one of America's great institutions of higher learning; one of significance not only to the state which supports it, but one of consequence on the national and international scene.

Among its alumni, Illinois claims 19 members of the National Academy of Sciences, three founding members of the National Academy of Engineering, and 12 members of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. The university is, in 1967, of a size and importance unimagined by those who took part in its establishment in 1867.

The university's centennial year begins today with the marking of the 100th anniversary of Gov. Richard J. Oglesby's signing into law on February 28, 1867 legislation passed by the Illinois General Assembly providing for the establishment of the "Illinois Industrial University" in Champaign County at a point halfway between the cities of Champaign and Urbana.

Under the able leadership of Fred H. Turner, dean of students and director of the centennial, the university has planned a yearlong series of observances to be climaxed by the 100th anniversary on March 11, 1967, of the formal ceremonies marking the inauguration of the new institution.

It is of significant interest that the University of Illinois is the land-grant institution in the State of the Union where the idea of the land-grant college or university originated. Furthermore the Land Grant Act of 1862, under which the national system of land-grant institutions has been established, was signed into law on July 1, 1862, by a President from Illinois, Abraham Lincoln.

But the history of the University of Illinois really precedes its foundation in 1867. As early as 1848, Jonathan B. Turner, of Jacksonville, Ill., corresponded with John Blanchard, president of Knox College, then one of several private colleges operating in the State, and made known his plan for establishing a State industrial and agricultural university.

In February 1853, the Illinois House and Senate adopted joint resolutions requesting Federal aid for a national system of agricultural and industrial universities and in 1854 forwarded the resolutions to Congress where they were read in the House and Senate.

Justin Morrill, for whom the Land Grant Act is popularly named, entered the House of Representatives in 1855 as a Representative from Vermont. Almost immediately after his election, he introduced, unsuccessfully, a bill calling for the establishment of a national agricultural school, to be chartered on the same basis as the national military academy. In 1857 he introduced yet another bill, which incorporated the essential features of the resolutions earlier put forth by the Illinois Legislature. The bill was passed by the House and Senate but vetoed by President Buchanan in 1859 on the grounds that it was unconstitutional. Finally passed and signed into law in 1862, the act provided for the granting of 30,000 acres of public land for each Senator and Representative in Congress of each particular State, "for the endowment, support, and maintenance of at least one college where the leading object shall be, without excluding other scientific and classical studies—to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts, in such manner as the legislatures of the States may prescribe." Thus Illinois' Jonathan Turner, while not the author of the bill to which the present University of Illinois owes its existence, was nevertheless instrumental in bringing about the establishment of the State university; he is still known today as the "father of industrial and agricultural education."

As required under the terms of the Morrill Act, the State of Illinois accepted its provisions on February 14, 1863. Four years passed before the State acted to bring the new type of State institution into reality.

The two decades previous to the passage of the Land Grant Act of 1862 had been marked with growing dissatisfaction with the colleges of the day, classical in course, basically preparing for the ministry or for the professions, and failing to meet the needs of the growing numbers of sons and daughters of workers and artisans, who felt the need for a type of education where agriculture and the mechanic arts might be taught, and while not excluding other classical and literary subjects, might better prepare the young people of the day for the demands of a faster moving industrial world.

It might be interesting to contemplate just what might have been in the minds of the young people of Illinois on February 28, 1867, when Governor Oglesby signed the bill establishing the new institution. Was their dream of an opportunity for higher education of a new type about to be realized? Was all this talk about a new institution within their financial means just talk? How could the proposed new university ever be readied for them, when it was known that in Champaign-Urbana there existed a partially built building, just one, to house the new university; there was no board of trustees, there was no faculty, there was no course of study?

Yet in the 12 months and 11 days from February 28, 1867, to March 11, 1868, the one building was completed and ready, the Governor had appointed a board of trustees, this board had hired a regent, and two additional teachers, had adopted a course of study, and 72 students had been registered between March 2, 1868, and March 11, when the formal opening was held.

The students of 1867 and 1868 had little more than hope and promises on which to base their educational dreams. Their reasons for optimism must have been severely strained as they watched the plans develop. Students of every generation have their problems, but the students of 1967 have much more on which to base promising opportunities than did the students of a hundred years ago.

The Illinois Industrial University of February 28, 1867, had one poorly built building. Today the three campuses of the University of Illinois occupy 179 major and 456 other buildings on three campuses, with 152 major buildings at Urbana-Champaign, 13 at the medical center in Chicago, and 14 at Chicago Circle, the total value of these buildings being about $425 million. The three faculty members of the first year have grown to about 5,000 at Urbana-Champaign, 600 at the medical center, and 700 at Chicago Circle, and in addition to the more than 6,000 teaching and administrative officers, there are 8,500 non-academic employees engaged in various duties connected with the operation of the three campuses. The 72 students have grown to a total full-time student body of over 29,000 at Urbana-Champaign, 2,500 at the medical campus, and 11,000 at Chicago Circle, and in addition some 4,500 students are taught part time in extra mural classes. The one pitifully small academic unit has become an organization of 15 colleges and schools at Urbana-Champaign, five at the medical center, and eight at Chicago Circle. And the library, which did not exist when the university was opened now has more than 5,700,000 items, and is exceeded only by Harvard and Yale among university libraries.

With a physical plant which is modern and ever growing, with a large and distinguished faculty, with a library adequate for any reference or research, and a choice of courses almost without restriction, the student of 1967 is placed in the promising position of almost no limitation on his educational opportunity as the university enters its Centennial Year.

In the last 100 years 19 men have served as President of the United States and the State of Illinois has had 20 Governors. During that time only 12 men have served as president of the University of Illinois. All of them left their mark on the university but none, in my judgment, has coped so successfully with such complex problems as the present chief administrator, Dr. David Dodds Henry, who has been the president of the University of Illinois since 1955. His predecessors and the dates of their administrations were: John Milton Gregory, 1867 to 1880; Selim Hobart Peabody, 1880 to 1891; Thomas Jonathan Burrill, 1891 to 1894; Andrew Sloan Draper, 1894 to 1904; Edmund James James, 1904 to 1920; David Kinley, 1920 to 1930; Harry Woodburn Chase, 1930 to 1933; Arthur Hill Daniels, 1933 to 1934; Arthur Cutts Willard, 1934 to 1946; George Dinsmore Stoddard, 1946 to 1952; and Lloyd Morey, 1953 to 1954.

The University of Illinois has proved to be an influence far greater than the short tenure of its existence would seem to demand. It has sought to educate, in the most profound sense of the term. For, "education is a high word," as Cardinal Newman wrote in his Idea of a University. "It is the preparation for knowledge, and it is the imparting of knowledge in proportion to that preparation." This university has achieved a quality of excellence in preparing for, and in imparting knowledge; and the stoic philosopher, Epictetus, spoke wisely in saying, "Only the educated are free."

present—169.

By unanimous consent, Mr. Sevcik was excused from attendance because of an illness in the family; and Messrs. Harris, Fencnessey and O. G. Collins because of illness.

The Journal of Wednesday, February 22nd was being read when, on motion of Mr. Regner, further reading of the same was dispensed with and it was ordered to stand approved.

The Speaker laid before the House a copy of the Report of the Constitution Study Commission, which was placed on file.

The Speaker laid before the House a copy of the Report of Department of Audits, which was placed on file.

Mr. Mann asked and obtained unanimous consent to have the report on Low Income Housing deferred from March 1st to April 15th.

Legislative Journal - March 1, 1967 continued.

A message from the Senate by Mr. Fernandes, Secretary:

Mr. Speaker—I am directed to inform the House of Representatives that the Senate has adopted the following preamble and joint resolution, in the adoption of which I am instructed to ask the concurrence of the House of Representatives, to-wit:

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 27

WHEREAS, The University of Illinois was founded on February 28, one hundred years ago and is beginning the celebration of the Centennial of that event; and

WHEREAS, The University has risen to the challenge of providing higher education of quality to the sons and daughters of Illinois, offering a broad spectrum of studies; and

WHEREAS, The University has brought credit to Illinois with a national and international reputation for education and service in the humanities, the sciences, and the arts; and

WHEREAS, The University has served Illinois—both urban and rural—through extension services, cultural activities, and use of its facilities and personnel; and

WHEREAS, The University has been a leader in education and educational policy in establishing the first school of architecture in the United States, the first comprehensive program for the physically disabled, the office of Dean of Men, and the tradition of Homecoming; and

WHEREAS, The more than one third of a million alumni look forward to a distinguished future and continued expansion of education, research, and service functions of the University to meet the ever-growing need; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Senate of the Seventy-fifth General Assembly of the State of Illinois, the House of Representatives concurring herein, that the General Assembly commends the University of Illinois and wishes it success in every facet of its celebration in this momentous year.

Adopted by the Senate, March 1, 1967.

EDWARD E. FERNANDES, Secretary of the Senate.

By unanimous consent, the foregoing Senate Joint Resolution No. 27 was taken up for immediate consideration.

Mr. Clabaugh moved that the House concur with the Senate in the adoption of said resolution.

The motion prevailed.

And the House concurred with the Senate in the adoption of Senate Joint Resolution No. 27.

Ordered that the Clerk inform the Senate thereof.

RICHARD J. DALEY
MAYOR

CITY OF CHICAGO
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, the University of Illinois was founded on February 28, 1867, as the state's Land-Grant Institution and will be celebrating the centennial of this event during 1967 and 1968; and

WHEREAS, during the century since its founding, the University has risen from its humble beginnings as the Illinois Industrial University to an institution of national and international reputation for excellence in the arts, sciences, humanities, and professions, and for leadership in educational policy; and

WHEREAS, the University of Illinois has steadily grown in size and stature, rising to the greatest challenges in providing quality education for increasing numbers in a broad spectrum of studies while maintaining the highest standards in research and service; and

WHEREAS, the more than one third of a million alumni, in all parts of the world, look forward to a distinguished future of continued excellence in education, research, and service by the University:

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Richard J. Daley, Mayor of the City of Chicago, express to the University, its administration, faculty, students and alumni, on behalf of the people of this city our congratulations in this its centennial year and our hopes for continued success in every endeavor, and that February 28, 1967 be officially proclaimed UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS DAY IN CHICAGO.

Dated this 17th day of February, A.D., 1967.

Mayor

HONORARY DEGREES GRANTED IN THE CENTENNIAL YEAR

Seventeen honorary degrees were awarded to distinguished persons during the Centennial Year. Most of these were awarded at the time of special occasions and all but two at the time of major events in the Centennial Year. The following lists the dates, places, occasions, recipients, and degrees of those honored:

May 5, 1967 - Urbana

Honors Day

James Alfred Perkins -

Doctor of Law
President of Cornell
University, and speaker at the Honors Day Convocation

May 12, 1967 - Urbana

A Seminar on International Accounting, A Centennial Event of the College of Commerce and Business Administration

Ananias Charles Littleton -

Doctor of Law
Professor, Emeritus, of Accounting, University
of Illinois

June 9, 1967 - Medical Center

Commencement Exercises

Katherine Ellen Faville -

Doctor of Science
Dean of Nursing of Wayne
University, Detroit

Theodore Kenneth Lawless -

Doctor of Law
Distinguished Dermatologist and Humanitarian,
Chicago

June 17, 1967 - Urbana

Commencement Exercises

E. C. Amoroso -

Doctor of Science
Professor of the Royal Veterinary College of the University of London

David E. Lilienthal -

Doctor of Public Administration, Former Chairman of Atomic Energy Commission, now Chief Executive for Development and Resources Corpora-

SEMINARS OTHER THAN THOSE LISTED ON THE OFFICIAL CENTENNIAL CALENDAR.

(Unless otherwise indicated, on the Urbana-Champaign Campus)

1967

- Feb. 28 - Dr. L. Miller, Northwestern University.
(Nuc. Eng.)
- March 1 - Prof. Joseph T. Woolley. (Hort.)
- March 1 - Dr. Tom Fritz, Argonne National Laboratories.
(Vet. Med.)
- March 1 - Dr. Oscar Hechter, American Medical Association, (Medical Center) Institute for Biomedical Research.
(Physiol.)
- March 2 - Dr. Edward Voss, Washington University, St.
Louis, Missouri. (Microbiology)
- March 2 - Dr. James L. Divilbiss. (E.E.)
- March 3 - Mr. Walter Tuman. (Chem.)
(Medical Center)
- March 6 - Dr. George B. Rabb, Chicago Zoological Park, Brookfield. (Zool.)
- March 6 - Prof. Brenda Milner, Montreal Neurological (Medical Center) Institute. (Inst. for Mental Health)
- March 6 - Dr. Henry Mahler, Indiana University.
(Medical Center) (Bio. Chem.)
- March 7 - Prof. Thomas T. Bannister, University of Rochester. (Botany)
- March 7 - Dr. Y. N. Lwin, Western Illinois University.
(Nuc. Eng.)

- March 7 - Dr. Morris Pollard, Notre Dame University.
(Chicago Circle) (Microbiology)
- March 8 - Prof. Samuel R. Aldrich. (Hort.)
- March 8 - Prof. Hubert R. Catchpole. (Path.)
(Medical Center)
- March 9 - Prof. Herbert I. Schiller. (Econ.)
- March 9 - Prof. John V. Evans, Massachusetts Institute of Technology. (E.E.)
- March 9 - Dr. J. C. Thaemert, Heart Disease Research
(Medical Center) Training Center, Chicago. (Anat.)
- March 10 - Dr. Kent V. Flannery, University of Michigan.
(Anthro. and Latin Amer. Studies)
- March 10 - Mr. William Mead. (Physiol. Biophysics)
- March 13 - Dr. Elliott Osserman, Columbia University.
(Medical Center) (Microbiology)
- March 13 - Prof. M. X. Zarrow, Purdue University.
(Endocrinology)
- March 13 - Prof. James E. Heath. (Zool.)
- March 14 - Prof. Marvin E. Wyman. (Nuc. Eng.)
- March 14 - Prof. Walter L. Myers. (Physiol.)
- March 15 - Dr. Edward Prorok. (Orthodontics)
(Medical Center)
- March 15 - Prof. Paul R. Fitzgerald. (Protozoology and Parasitology)
- March 16 - Dr. Robert J. Ryan. (Med.)
(Medical Center)
- March 16 - Dr. Richard Toepfer, I.B.M., San Jose, California. (E.E.)
- March 20 - Dr. John J. Christian, Einstein Medical Center, Philadelphia. (Zool.)
- March 20 - 21 - Prof. Joseph Meites, Michigan State University.
(Endocrinology)

- March 21 - Prof. Lynn B. Bridwell, Murray State College, Kentucky. (Nuc. Eng.)
- March 22 - Prof. Frank J. Stevenson. (Hort.)
- March 23 - Mr. James Harvey, John Deere Company, Waterloo, Iowa. (Mech. and Ind. Eng.)
- March 23 - Dr. Rene Cohen, Gif-Sur-Yvette, France.
(Microbiology)
- March 28 - Dr. Marion T. Hall, Director, Morton Arboretum.
(Chicago Circle) (Biol. Sci.)
- March 29 - Dr. Olav Alvares and Dr. Sidney Peskin.
(Medical Center)
- April 3 - Dr. Sidney B. Kater, University of Virginia.
(Entom. and Zool.)
- April 6 - Prof. Henry Merkelo. (E.E.)
- April 6 - Dr. William D. Shorey. (Surgery)
(Medical Center)
- April 7 - Prof. Kenneth D. Roeder, Tufts University.

II. GROUNDBREAKING CEREMONIES (OR CONSTRUCTION BEGAN)

Brief ceremonies in each situation.

III. UNDER CONSTRUCTION THROUGHOUT THE CENTENNIAL YEAR

Hopes that some of these might be completed and dedicated during the Centennial Year were not realized.

IV. OTHER GROUNDS AND LANDSCAPE CENTENNIAL FEATURES

1. Morrow Plots:

Several months prior to the opening of the Centennial Year, Dean O. G. Bentley, College of Agriculture, started his efforts to secure the approval of the National Park Service of the United States Department of Interior to declare the famed Morrow Plots on the South Campus a National Historic Landmark. Assistance was sought through Congressman, W. L. Springer, who proved to be most helpful.

Representatives from the United States Department of Interior visited the Campus in the winter of 1967-1968, indicated interest in the project, but doubted if it could be completed within the Centennial Year. However, the approval was completed in May, 1968, and the work initiated in the Centennial Year reached a successful conclusion at that time.

2. Class of 1917 Gift: Centennial Court and Mall:

At its Golden Anniversary Reunion in June 1967, the Class of 1917 announced a gift of some $50,000 to be used in building and landscaping a "Centennial Court and Mall" to be built between Noyes Laboratory and the Chemistry Annex. This Court and Mall will eventually be extended east on California Avenue to provide the grand approach to the Krannert Center for the Performing Arts. Work was started immediately but not completed within the Centennial Year.

3. Centennial Planting:

The Building and Grounds Department at Chicago Circle prepared a number of Centennial Plantings in flower beds on that Campus in the summer of 1967. The Centennial Colophon was used in many of these, using contrasting colored flowers and foliage plants.

The Chicago Park Board also recognized the Centennial Year in floral planting in beds in the Grant Park Gardens.

4. Tree Planting Program of the Champaign County Development Council Foundation:

An organization of Community-University citizens was formed in 1966 under the name of Champaign County Development Council Foundation. Its purpose was in the total areas of city planning and beautification, and with an immediate objective of replacement of shade trees in the community and improvement of the University Avenue approach to the Campus.

In the winter of 1967-68, numerous new trees were planted along University Avenue from Broadway in Urbana to Neil Street in Champaign. At the north end of Illinois Field, a special Centennial Planting of a "President's Walk" was completed. The parking across the north end of Illinois Field was widened, landscaped, and paved walks provided. New lighting is to be added. While not completed within the Centennial Year, the entire project carries the name "Centennial Trees" and its application with the Centennial Year is completely recognized.

5. Centennial Class of 1967 Gift:

An unusual gift announced on March 1, 1968, was a fund to assist in the redevelopment of the West Entrance to the Administration Building. The Centennial Class of 1967 announced its gift to help with a small plaza, stone benches, a walk-up map and directory for the campus, and a bronze casting of the Centennial Colophon, as a gift of the Class. (Project completed, fall of 1968.)
